[SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN]

RAWLINS Wy Oct 13—Mr Emil Webler and George Fuhr two carriers have just arrived from what was a few days ago the White River Agency From them I learn the following particulars Gen Merritt advanced upon the agency on the 10th inst and on his way he found many dead bodies Among others he found the bodies of Carl Goldstein an Israelite who left here with government supplies for the Utes at White River Agency He was found in a gulch six miles this side of the agency and had been shot twice through the shoulder and was about two miles from his wagons A teamster named Julius Moore formerly from Bainbridge Mass who was with him when he left here was found about one hundred yards from Goldstein with two bullet holes in his breast and his body hacked and mutilated with a knife or hatchet As the command advanced through the canyon they came to an old coal mine and in it was found the dead body of an employe named Dresser who had evidently been wounded and crawled into the mine to die His coat was folded up and placed under his head for a pillow Beside him lay a Winchester rifle containing eight cartridges and in one of his pockets a letter was found which, as near as the courier can remember was as follows

WHITE RIVER Sept. 29 1 P M

Major Thornburgh—I will come with Chief Douglas and another chief and meet you to morrow Everything quiet here and Douglas is flying the United States flag We have been on guard three nights and will be to-night not that we expect any trouble but because there might be. Did you have any trouble coming through? [Signed]

N C MEEKER U S Indian Agent.

On entering the agency a scene of quiet desolation presented itself All the buildings except one were burned to the ground and not a living thing in sight except the command The Indians had taken every thing except the flour and decamped The women and children were missing and nothing whatever could be found to indicate what had become of them They have either been murdered and buried or else taken away as hostages. Their dreadful and unmentionable fate calls forth the most profound sympathy The dead body of Father Meeker was found about one hundred yards from his house lying on his back shot through the head, the left side of his head mashed in with some blunt instrument, a piece of a barrel stave driven into his mouth and one of his hands and arms badly burned The dead body of Mr W H Post, Father Meeker's assistant, was found between the buildings and the river with a bullet hole through the left ear and one under the ear He and Father Meeker were stripped entirely naked Another employe named Eaton was found dead He was stripped naked and had a bundle of paper bags on his arms, and his face was badly eaten by wolves and a bullet hole in his left breast Frank Dresser, a brother of the one found in the coal mine was found badly burned He had without doubt been killed instantly as a bullet had passed through his heart The bodies of Eaton Thompson Price Eskridge and all other employes not named were also found Eskridge was found two miles this side of the agency naked, and a bullet hole through his head In the house occupied by the Indians during Thornburgh's battle, in a breastwork made of stone was found the dead body of an unknown white man, dressed in buckskin He was sitting on his knees and had his gun in position to fire He was shot through the forehead From this it appears that the Indians were not alone in their hellish work. It is supposed that the Indians have gone to join the southern Utes and there is an impression among the officers of Merritt's command, that the Indians who fought Thornburgh numbered at least seven hundred

The Indian Loss.

BEAR RIVER, Col, Oct 11—(via Rawlins, Wy, Oct 11)—Indian reports brought in from the agency by Los Pinos Utes, state that 37 Indians were killed during the fight of 29th September and siege until October 5th, the date of Gen Merritt's arrival

Report from Gen. Merritt.

RAWLINS, Wy, Oct. 13—Lieuts Bourke and Schuyler arrived here this morning and at last authentic report is had of the doings of Gen. Merritt and his command since their march to the front On the afternoon of the day on which he reached Capt Payne's camp he had a fight with the Indians Had to move camp about a mile from Payne's old position that night on account of the fearful stench created by the dead animals Merritt moved upon the agency and reached there Saturday. The Indians are retreating southward and it is expected that in small bands they will drop into the various Ute agencies and thus covering themselves it will never be known as to who were the warriors who opened the battle on Thornburgh Dismounted companies and the wounded will be here in seven days

Official Orders from General Sherman and Secretary Schurz—Justice Must be Done—Chief Ouray.

WASHINGTON, Oct 13—Secretary Schurz immediately upon receiving a dispatch stating that the hostile Utes had retired through the influence of Ouray called at the war department and consulted with General Sherman on the subject The latter at once sent the following telegram to General Sheridan

HEAD QUARTERS ARMY OF THE U S
WASHINGTON October 13 1879,

To Gen P H Sheridan, Commanding Division Etc Chicago The honorable secretary of the interior has this morning called with a dispatch conveying a proposition for peace which is communicated for your own information and which should go for what it is worth to Generals Crook and Merritt and the latter is on the spot and can tell if the hostiles have ceased fighting If so Gen Merritt must go in any event to the agency to ascertain the actual condition of facts All Indians who oppose must be cleared out of the way If they resist, if they surrender their arms and ponies they should be held as prisoners to be disposed of by superior orders. The secretary of the interior will send a special agent at once to Ouray who is believed to be our friend He may prevent the southern Utes from being involved and the interior department can befriend him afterward by showing favor to some of his special friends but the murderers of the agent and employes must be punished as also those who fought and killed Major Thornburgh and his men Please acknowledge receipt.

W T SHERMAN
General.

An Order from Secretary Schurz.

In reply to a telegram from Indian agent Stanley the secretary of the interior sent the following

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR
Oct. 13 1879

Stanley Agent Los Pinos Agency Your dispatch received Tell Ouray that his efforts are highly appreciated by the government In view of the attack made upon the troops and the massacre of Meeker and employes troops will have to proceed to White River agency Ouray should endeavor to prevent any [illegible] resistance to this movement. Troops are now [illegible] and resistance would result only in great disaster to the Indians The hostiles will have to surrender and throw themselves upon the mercy of the government Guilty parties must be identified and delivered up We shall see that no injustice is done any one Peaceable Indians will be protected Ouray's recommendation for mercy to individuals will be respected as far as general interests may permit Hope agents are using [illegible] with [illegible]

SCHURZ Sec'y

The Southern Utes will Obey Ouray

WASHINGTON Oct 13 Employe Brady and escort of Indians just arrived from White river The Utes recognized and obeyed Ouray's orders withdrew and will fight no more unless forced to do so If the soldiers are now stopped trouble can be stopped by the peace commission to investigate the offences and let the blame rest where it may This will save life expense and distress if it can be accomplished

LATER 1 30 P M—A runner just from the Southern Ute agency with a letter from the agent which reports that a general council has been held and that the Utes will obey Ouray's request and will stay at home and take no part in the White river trouble and request Ouray to inform the government of their decision

GENERAL GRANT.

ARRIVAL OF THE ST PAUL AT ASTORIA

The Greeting by the Military and Citizens—The General Steps Ashore at Astoria and is Welcomed by Mayor and People—His Response—The "St. Paul" proceeds on up the river

SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN

ASTORIA Oct 13

Astoria had expected the arrival of General Grant not later than Sunday noon Gen Howard and staff Gov Ferry and a large delegation from the legislature of Washington territory and numerous other visitors arrived at Astoria Saturday night ready to welcome the illustrious visitor On Sunday morning Capt Gray placed the steamer Canby at the disposal of the committee of reception and several distinguished gentlemen and press reporters left at an early hour to board the St Paul as soon as she crossed the bar Astoria was decked in holiday attire and shipping in the harbor displayed all their bunting When night set in the St Paul was not in sight as far as Tillamook Rock Many fears were expressed that she might possibly have broken down Happily these fears were not realized

At 7 o clock this morning the report of a cannon at Fort Stevens announced to those waiting at Astoria that the long-expected steamer had arrived outside the bar In a few minutes the tug Canby, with Gen Greene Maj Throckmorton Hon W D Hare and reporters, started towards the sea and met the St Paul one mile east of Cape Hancock where they were taken aboard and greetings exchanged

When the St Paul had arrived at the junction of the north and south channels, and nearly abreast of Fort Stevens a salute of twenty one guns was fired with perfect precision Commencing at the left of the battery

THUNDERS OF WELCOME WENT FORTH

From 10 inch Columbiads and three hundred pounder rifles at intervals of ten seconds the last shot being fired as the vessel was opposite the fort. A salute was also fired from Fort Canby As the St Paul passed up the river she was greeted with hearty cheers from the officers and crews of English vessels anchored which were acknowledged and answered by the party on board the St Paul

ARRIVAL AT ASTORIA

The vessels lying at Astoria were gaily decorated Amid the ringing of the church and fire bells, the shriek of whistles and the music of a band the St Paul touched the Astoria dock at twenty three minutes past eight As she neared Gen Grant stood on deck dressed very plainly smoking a cigar his quick glances darting over the hills back of Astoria, and he spoke occasionally to his companions He looks much older than he did during his last presidential term His form has lost its former rotundity, his face its fullness and deep crows feet show about the eyes His beard too, is heavily streaked with gray Three hearty cheers greeted the distinguished soldier as the ship touched, and he acknowledged them by raising his hat and bowing

Mayor W. W Parker and members of the city council at Astoria came aboard and were introduced, Gen O O Howard, with his staff Gen O P Green, Capt J A Sladen and Lieut C E S Wood, accompanied by Major Wm Gouverneur Morris and Capt Geo D Hill then ascended the gang plank Gen Howard shook hands with the ex-president, and said Welcome to the department, after which the other officers were introduced

Mayor Parker invited Gen Grant to step ashore and give the citizens of Astoria an opportunity to welcome him, They made their way through the crowd to a stand on the dock a short distance from the steamer Mayor Parker delivered a short address of welcome, to which the general responded as follows

Mr Mayor and Gentlemen of the Council of Astoria. I thank you and the citizens of Astoria for this kind reception Twenty seven years ago I first visited your state and I have ever felt a strong desire again to behold this important section of our common country This will make the ninth time I shall have passed up and down this beautiful and grand river Every point of interest between Astoria and the Dalles returns to my memory I never had the pleasure of stepping ashore at this particular place before but it seems to me that when I last passed by here the hills forming the background of this thriving town were much higher than they are now This I presume is a mark and sign of the improvement and growth of your promising city which I am rejoiced to see presents a striking contrast to the Astoria of twenty seven years ago Gentlemen the geographical position of this city over which you preside, together with evidences of enterprise thrift and industry which caught my eye as we entered your harbor is a sure indication that ere long one of the most important commercial cities of the Pacific coast will be your city of Astoria That this may soon be accomplished and the prosperity of your town be uninterrupted you have gentlemen my most hearty wish I regret that my stay will be so short as I would be pleased to visit every portion of the North Pacific coast. It seems like returning home again. Thanking you for your kind and cordial welcome I assure you it will ever be cherished in my memory

The crowd then passed the stand in single file and shook hands with the general He returned to the ship and at ten minutes past 9 o clock she left for Vancouver Twenty minutes later the Fairy with Gen Howard and staff officers and legislators of Washington territory and reporters followed passing the St Paul a few miles from Astoria

THE PASSAGE FROM SAN FRANCISCO

The trip of the St Paul from the Bay City to the mouth of the Columbia was exceedingly rough and unenjoyable When four hours out they encountered a strong gale which lasted all day Friday and Saturday Every one of the party was sick except Gen Grant Gov Low and Mrs Gen McDowell who so the general remarked to a friend—never missed a meal nor paid a cent

The Greeting by Washington Territory Officials

The committee of reception of the Washington territory legislature which accompanied the [illegible] from Olympia [illegible] As [illegible] telegraphed [illegible] following from Vancouver As the St Paul with Gen Grant appeared [illegible] her lee [illegible] the wharf Gov Ferry accompanied by the territorial officers and Gen Howard's invitation boarded her. The president of the council and speaker of the house were also invited but preferred meeting and welcoming the general upon their own soil at Vancouver The governor was immediately recognized by Grant and most cordially greeted Drawing him aside [illegible] three or four minutes was had when the governor was introduced to Mrs Grant and he in turn introduced Surveyor General McMicken Major J F Hayden and T M Reed after which the Washington Territory party returned to the [illegible] and the Astoria reception was had

Gen Grant had arranged with the governor and officers of the territory to meet on deck [illegible] tion on board the Fairy and accompany them up the river to Vancouver but was over persuaded by the ladies on board the St Paul who had not yet recovered from the sickness occasioned by a severe voyage. Consequently the Fairy steamed ahead Gen Grant standing with uncovered head upon the deck and acknowledging the cheers as she passed Reaching Vancouver at 30 two hours at least before the St Paul was expected to arrive the delegation was taken in hand by the citizens and entertained until the steamer arrived

THE ARRIVAL AT VANCOUVER

The Whole Town Comes Out to Receive Gen Grant—An Enthusiastic Welcome Reception at Gen Howard's

SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN

VANCOUVER W T Oct 13

The St Paul arrived at 5 45 At every town on the river Grant was cheered by assembled crowds Several isolated houses attracted attention with shotguns and waved flags and handkerchiefs A salute of twenty one guns was fired at the dock The 21st infantry band played See, the Conquering Hero Comes All the troops and the whole population of Vancouver gathered at the dock on the St Paul's arrival Two hundred citizens bore torches A delay of an hour occurred before the party made their appearance the ladies were dressing for the reception At 6 35 Gen Grant came on deck and was introduced by Gen Howard to the officers of the post, and to Mayor Sohns who said I had the pleasure of landing with you here twenty-seven years ago! and to the committee of reception Gen Grant taking the arm of Gen Morrow walked to the end of the dock where the soldiers greeted him with cheers The party then took carriages for Gen Howard's residence preceded by a band and soldiers Gen Howard's residence the company barracks and the house of Providence were brilliantly illuminated Bonfires blazed on Main street and flags were stretched across the street at various points

Shortly after the Grant party arrived at Howard's residence Gov E P Ferry secretary N H Owings Surveyor General Wm McMicken Auditor T M Reed Major J R Hayden, Judge John P Hoyt, Hon F H Cook president of the council Hon Geo H Steward speaker of the house, and thirty members of the legislature entered the house in a body and took places in the east parlor Gov Ferry addressed Gen Grant as follows

The very pleasant duty has devolved on me of presenting to you this joint resolution unanimously adopted by the council and house of representatives of Washington Territory inviting you to visit all portions of the territory and particularly Olympia the capital In addition to the expression of the representatives I can assure you that the people of the territory will be highly complimented and gratified by a visit from you Should you visit the eastern portion of the territory you would obtain personal knowledge of a large acreage of agricultural land capable of producing one hundred million bushels of wheat annually, and from twenty-five to fifty bushels per acre At the present time you would see several thousand tons of wheat awaiting export on account of inadequacy of transportation You would also be confirmed in the opinion which I think you entertain that it is the duty of the government to remove obstructions to navigation existing in that noble river a portion of which you traversed to-day to enable those who inhabit the head waters to obtain an unobstructed outlet to the sea. Should you visit Western Washington and particularly Puget Sound you will discover the great commercial and manufacturing facilities of that locality

We cannot promise as grand a demonstration as you have received at many points since your return but we can promise you a heartfelt welcome and can assure you that the people of no portion of our common country have a higher admiration for you as a man as a soldier and a statesman than have the people of Washington territory

Gen Grant responded as follows

Governor and Members of the Legislature I regret exceedingly that I shall not be able to remain long enough to visit any other portion of the territory I had expected to spend several weeks on the Pacific coast but the reunion of the Army of the Tennessee which I commanded during the late unpleasantness, was postponed for my return and I have promised to meet them They did not fix the day until I promised to be with them early in November That, with other appointments compels me to leave not later than the 17th You can easily see the impossibility of accepting your invitation.

Your statement of the producing capacity of the territory surprises and gratifies me. I lived a year on the spot on which I now stand but never visited that portion of which you speak I always supposed that while a part was productive a greater share was too unproductive except of fish and timber to justify enough population to make a state unless there should be some mineral development From your statement I have no doubt of your soon becoming a state and we can't have too many in this latitude

At the reception all the officers of the post and their wives and many prominent citizens of Vancouver called Grant will meet the citizens of Vancouver to morrow morning in the park He goes to the Cascades Wednesday and to Salem Thursday

BOOK NOTICES

HISTORY OF THE UNITED NETHERLANDS from the death of William the Silent to the Twelve Years' Truce By John Lothrop Motley In [illegible] vols New York Harper & Brothers For sale by A L Bancroft & Co San Francisco

Nothing has recently appeared in [illegible] of the publication of a new edition of the [illegible] of the Dutch Republic This has been followed by a new edition in the same style of the History of the United Netherlands It is [illegible] of this history [illegible] records the most tremendous struggle for liberty which the world has ever known [illegible] this edition is [illegible] feature of elegance and at the same time is furnished at two dollars a volume a considerable reduction from the price of the former edition The nine volumes of Motley's narrative including three of the Dutch Republic the four of the United Netherlands and the two of Barneveld may now be had for eighteen dollars

Any commendation of this history would now be superfluous It fills a place in literature which may be called exclusively its own The agony of that unparalleled struggle for liberty culminates in these volumes of the United Netherlands In all lands those who enjoy freedom are heirs of the tremendous sacrifices of that little nation which for half a century defied struggled with and at last beat down the insolence and despotism of mighty Spain then the foremost power in the world

THE LIFE AND DEATH OF JOHN OF BARNEVELD Advocate of Holland By J L Motley two vols Published by Harper & Brothers New York For sale by A L Bancroft & Co San Francisco

This book uniform in style with the above presents a narrative which may be called an episode of the Dutch Republic John Barneveld was an eminent Dutch statesman born at Amersfoort in 1549 He was a member of an important embassy sent to England in 1585 and after his return was appointed Advocate General of Holland He was an adversary of the great Earl of Leicester and became head of the republican party while Maurice of Nassau was the chief of its opponents Barneveld opposed his ambitious designs and in 1609 concluded a truce with Spain for twelve years He was for many years [illegible] of Holland The [illegible] the great parties in the state was [illegible] by religious dissensions Barneveld favored the Arminians The Synod of Dort condemned them in 1618 Barneveld was unjustly tried for treason and beheaded in 1619

THE FAIR OF MAYFIELD.—A Novel T B Peterson & Brothers, Philadelphia

The opening scenes of this novel are in the south some of them being laid on a sugar plantation, and much food for pleasant meditation will be found in the study of the several characters portrayed One will watch with interest the course of the hero, Carew through years of uncertainty until he finally attains that happiness which he thought the fates had denied him It would be impossible to enumerate the many virtues of the lovely and perfectly pure heroine Mary Stuart or the pleasing qualities of Boiseau, Whitfield Brandon Randolph and other characters in the work, but in praising worth, we must not fail to mention the faithful Mignon whose equal for love and interest in her fair mistress is rarely found The incidents and scenes laid in Italy cannot fail to please the most fastidious nor will be found to have the rare merit of making the reader wish there were more of them But too much cannot be said of the scenes laid in Old England where the story closes upon the several characters whom we have watched from the opening pages we leave them there lingeringly though not unwillingly—for their hopes of happiness are fully realized It has the advantage of having but few characters with good descriptions excellent dialogues well sustained interest and contains all the elements of a successful novel, the whole being well told

THE NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW

The October number of this periodical gives a third instalment of The Diary of a Public Man The name of the writer of these interesting war reminiscences is withheld but it has been suggested that the name of United States Senator Collamer of Vermont is the diarist and some references in the present extracts seem to justify the suggestion Fourteen printed pages cover the record of but two days so that it would seem that the writer must have given a good deal of time to his diary The two days are the important 3d and 4th of March, 1861 There is a long account of an interview with Mr Sumner and another gentleman whose name is not given in which these two endeavored to prevail on the writer to use his influence with the president to prevent the appointment of Simon Cameron to a cabinet position Mr Sumner's hostility to Mr Cameron's appointment was based upon two grounds the bad character of the man and the preponderance of middle-state influence, which would result if Seward and Cameron were in the cabinet This interview was followed by one with Douglas on the same day, and it seems that the president had communicated to Douglas the purport of his inaugural on certain points There is a curious account of the sending a dispatch at Mr Seward's instance to Jefferson Davis informing him that the tone of the president's inaugural would be conciliatory The account of the ceremonies of the inauguration as witnessed by the writer is very interesting He entirely disapproved of the display of military force and precaution, which he attributes to General Scott's vanity, and the mischievous influence of the Blairs He says Mr Lincoln was pale and very nervous and did not read his message with good effect which is hardly to be wondered at, since the arrangements are described as exceedingly poor failing to give dignity to the occasion or afford personal comfort to the president The comments of various people on the address and an account of the inaugural ball close the record of the day Seward was very desirous to have the ball a success and a daily adviser an individual who sought his judgment on the state of the nation to buy a number of tickets to the festivity saying that if the ball went off well all would be well Certainly exclaims the diarist Mr Seward is one of the most perplexing men alive I cannot doubt his personal integrity or his patriotism but he does certainly contrive to surround himself with the most objectionable people and to countenance the most questionable operations imaginable

Francis Parkman contributes an essay on The Woman Question in which he candidly and friendly investigates the [illegible] of the sexes and [illegible] has been made [illegible] The [illegible] the suffrage [illegible] minded [illegible] ought [illegible] this be[illegible] one of the [illegible] nation

Mrs Grant like most other ladies is afraid of storms and frequently on their journeyings has given utterance to fears of going to the bottom of the sea Yesterday when the St Paul ran on the sand, Gen Grant, addressing his wife familiarly said Julia you ought to be satisfied now we've gone to the bottom at last!"

Here was the turning point in the General's career, and with the fall of Donelson came the plaudits of the people and recognition from the Government The fight lasted three days, and on the 15th Grant carried the works by assault, cap[turing] small arms 14,623 [illegible] ut 2,000 Confederates [illegible] and wounded while [illegible] 300 Besides being [illegible] for the Union of the Genealogy of the Grants.

In the life of Grant by Dana and Wilson, there is the following note on the Grant genealogy:

Playfair's British Family Antiquity, vol. VII., states that the original of the Grants is somewhat doubtful, and whether they were originally Scots or came from Denmark or France, cannot now be positively stated It is probable, however, they were Norman and arrived about 1066 with William, the Conqueror It is certain that the clan had become great and powerful in the early days of the Scotch monarchy. Gregory Grant, was "Sheriff Principal" of Inverness, between 1214 and 1249 John Grant commanded the right wing of the Scotch army at Halidon Hill, 1333, and was defeated About 1400, the clan became divided into clan Chiatan and clan Allan They held great possessions in the Strathspey country, and in the Jacobite troubles adhered to the Protestant and Whig cause

The Strathspey country, the original home of the Grants, lies in the northeastern part of Scotland, along the course of the picturesque river Spey, in the shires of Inverness, Moray and Banff, and is remarkable for its beautiful scenery and noble forests of fir

In "Collectanea Topographica et Genealogica" vol vii., it is stated that Lieutenant-General Francis Grant was buried in Hampshire, England, December, 3, 1781, and that his monument bears as a crest a burning mount with the motto "Steadfast" In "Fairbairn's Crests of the Families of Great Britain and Ireland," twenty-one different crests of the Grant family are given. One of them represents a burning hill with four peaks, each surmounted by a flame, with the motto "Stand sure: Stand fast: Craig Elachie." Another Grant has as a crest, an oak sprouting and sun shining, with the motto "Wise and Harmless"

Robson's "British Herald" gives twenty-four crests of different Grants Grant of Jamaica has a burning mount—motto: "Stable" Grant of Grant, a burning mount, supported by two savages—motto: "Stand sure," Grant of Grantown, a demi savage—motto: "I'll stand sure," and Grant of Leith, a rock—motto: "Immobile."

One of the most distinguished regiments of the British army in India during the Sepoy rebellion, was a highland regiment composed almost entirely of Grants, bearing upon their colors the motto "Stand fast Craig Ellachie!"

The reader cannot help being struck by the remarkable description of Grant's most noticeable peculiarities contained in the foregoing mottoes of his sturdy clansmen

OHIO AND IOWA.

THE TWO STATES [illegible] TO THE "SOLID SOUTH."

Twenty Thousand Republican Majority in Ohio—Iowa Assures a Large Republican Majority Over the Democratic-Greenback Coalition.

[SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

Great Republican Gains Reported.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 14.—Noon—The [illegible] is clear and pleasant and there will [illegible] ly be a large vote polled. [illegible] about the average number had voted.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 14—7 P. M.—The [illegible] passed off quietly. An unusually [illegible] was polled and at most precincts an [illegible] number of [illegible] tickets [illegible] The nationals, in some of their [illegible] abandoned their ticket, and [illegible] formerly been republicans [illegible] and those who had affiliated with [illegible] crats for Ewing. C M. [illegible] claims to belong in Cincinnati [illegible] charged with repeating. It will [illegible] quite late before the result [illegible] can be known and reliable [illegible] legislature can not be expected [illegible]

COLUMBUS, Oct. 14—[illegible] come in slowly. [illegible] chiefly from the northern [illegible] show a republican gain of [illegible] for members of state [illegible]

9:30 P. M.—Scattering [illegible] from 75 precincts show [illegible] of 1945.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 14—8 P. M.—[illegible] tricts, with one exception, [illegible] gains.

The Republicans [illegible]

COLUMBUS, Oct. 14—10:30 P. M.—[illegible] from one hundred and fifty five [illegible] throughout the state show a net gain [illegible] for Foster.

Republicans Claim the Legislature.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 14—Republicans claim the legislature on the report of 4000 [illegible] majority in Cincinnati and Hamilton [illegible] Democrats do not concede this. [illegible] dred and forty precincts, wards [illegible] ships give a net republican gain of [illegible]

Fuller Returns Show Still Greater Republican Gains.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 14—11:50 P. M.—[illegible] from 360 precinct wards and townships [illegible] a net republican gain of 5730

A Big Republican Majority.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 14.—The democratic [illegible] tive committee concedes the election of the entire state republican ticket, but [illegible] that sufficient returns have not been received to determine the complexion of the legislature, and thinks that later returns [illegible] show large democratic gains in certain [illegible] ties of the state. The chairman of the republican executive committee claims the election of Foster by 20,000 majority, and [illegible] that the republicans will elect a majority of the members of the general assembly.

And It Grows Bigger.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 15, 1:40 A. M.—At [illegible] we have returns of vote for governor [illegible] one fourth of the state, which show [illegible] can gains of 7400, and indicate a [illegible] majority in the state of not less than [illegible] Definite returns of the result on members of the legislature have not been received [illegible] legislature is claimed by both parties [illegible] chances in favor of the republicans.

The Vote of Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 14.—Midnight—[illegible] wards in the city of Cleveland give [illegible] 3961 majority. The city and county [illegible] Foster about 5500 majority. [illegible] probably elect the entire county and legislative ticket.

Opinions on Both Sides.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 15—2:10 A. M.—The [illegible] cratic committee concede the [illegible] Foster, but claim the legislature. [illegible] man of the republican committee [illegible] election of 23 out of 35 senators, and [illegible] of 114 representatives.

The Iowa Election.

DES MOINES, Oct. 14.—The day has been fine, contest exciting, vote large [illegible] sult can not be ascertained until a late hour.

Republican Gains in Iowa.

CHICAGO, Oct. 14—Returns from 18 [illegible] places in Iowa give Gear 4422; Trimble, [illegible] Cambell, 882 Outside of this [illegible] various polling places, 2149 majority. [illegible] as reported republicans have gained [illegible] cases but one.

Everything Republican in Iowa.

DES MOINES, Oct. 14.—In the fifth congressional district Thompson (republican) is undoubtedly elected over Gillette (Greenback). Legislature returns indicate that the republicans will have a majority on joint ballot of sixty five.

About Two to One.

CHICAGO, Oct 15—1 A. M.—Returns from 48 places in Iowa give Gear 9296; Trimble, 4463.

Twenty Thousand, says Iowa.

DES MOINES Oct. 14—11:50 P. M.—At this hour returns received by the republican state committee and by the State Register indicate that the republican majority on state ticket, over both democratic and greenback tickets, will be at least 20 000

THE NORTHWEST.

The Willamette Valley.

Wheat is worth 97 cents aboard the cars at Irving.

The west side road now carries the mail through from Portland to McMinnville.

The Dallas council has ordered new sidewalks to be built along the principal streets of that town.

The west-side railroad extension has almost reached Derry, the station on Colonel Nesmith's place.

During a general row in a saloon at Independence last week, Wm Cornelius was shot in the leg by J. R. Cooper.

Some wretch recently shot and badly wounded a colt belonging to Mr. T. A. Shane, of Salem. A valuable dog was shot at the same time.

Prices current at Eugene: Wheat, 94c per bushel; oats, 35c; butter, 25c per pound; lard, 10c; eggs, 20c per dozen; bacon, sides, 10c; hams, 12½c; shoulders, 6c; flour, $6 per barrel.

Hon. Stephen Staats, in a communication to the Riverside, suggests connecting Dallas with the west side railroad by a branch to Dixie, and also the building of a road from that place to Salem.

The McMinnville warehouse men are complaining bitterly because they cannot get cars to ship wheat from that point, while a dozen or so have been taken up the track. The side track there is occupied continually with flats loaded with iron and other railroad material.

Dallas Itemizer: The board of equalization refused to reduce the tax on the railroad land in this county, which was assessed at $1 60 per acre. It is claimed by the railroad company that they are willing to sell the whole amount for $1 50 per acre, but no affidavit having been filed, as required by law, it was decided to leave it as assessed by our assessor.

The Yamhill Reporter has it from good authority that the railroad company will establish a depot at the cross roads near St. Joe, for the accommodation of Lafayette and surrounding country. This will be a great convenience to that town, and will put many a dollar into the pocket of the railroad company, as all the freight and passenger traffic would go by river had the depot been located at the point first intended—on the bank of the Yamhill.

Yamhill Reporter, 10th inst.: Wheat has again advanced and again fallen a little in price. During the week it has once reached $1 04, sacks, but had receded last evening to $1 02. These quotations are for McMinnville, where we observe that no sales worth mentioning have been made. From Sheridan we have quite a different report. In the neighborhood of 20,000 bushels changed hands there during the week, at from 97 cents to $1 per bushel, sacked. We have no reports from other markets in the county.

Work has begun on the projected wagon road from down towards Forest Grove, across the coast range and into Tillamook via the Dougherty river. This work is being done by the railroad company. They have a lot of land on the route which will be greatly enhanced in value by means of the road, and are coming forward liberally on their share of the enterprise. The people of Tillamook also have taken considerable stock in it, and from all appearances it will probably be carried on to completion.

TUESDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 14, 1879.

WHAT TAMMANY IS.

WHAT THE FAMOUS NEW YORK SOCIETY IS, AND HOW IT STARTED.

The questions are often asked, when was the Tammany society founded, and whence did it derive its name. And as the recent bolt of the sachem from the New York state convention excites a renewed interest in its history, it may not be amiss to publish the established traditions concerning its origin and appellation.

The Tammany society was founded in 1789, as is duly witnessed by the pediment which surmounts the front of Tammany Hall. In its earlier years its meetings were held in tavern halls, and were famous for their convivial character, if we may credit the verse of Halleck:

> There's a barrel of porter in Tammany Hall,
> And the Bucktails are swigging it all the night long.
> In the time of my childhood 'twas pleasant to call
> For a seat and cigar 'mid the jovial throng.

At that time there were many St. Tammany societies throughout the country, and there is no reason to believe that the sole survivor differed from them in the original purposes of its organization. But the others died, and the New York society became a democratic political institution—a fate far worse than death.

Tammany was an old Indian chief, whom it is by no means easy to identify, but he was the best known in the revolutionary times as an ancient Delaware sachem, who came off victorious in a terrific fight with his Satanic majesty. The contest was long and obstinately contested, and up to the last moment it was doubtful to which side victory would incline. Tammany was a skillful fighter, but his opponent was equally adroit, and after the battle had lasted all summer the combatants were somewhat tired, but like More, of More Hall, and the dragon of Wantley,

> Though their strength it was great, their skill it was neat,
> They never had one wound.

They played sad havoc with the forest, converting large districts of it into prairie, and such it still remains. At length, after months of severe fighting, the sachem threw the devil squarely on his back, and, says the historian, "would then and there have taken his scalp, had he not succeeded, owing to the victor's great exhaustion, in extricating himself and escaping over into New York, where he was hospitably received by the natives and has ever since continued to make his home." The same historian says the Tammany Society was, primarily no more of a New York institution than the great sagamore himself. Its origin is to be traced to the patriot revolutionary army, which, having no patron saint to fight under, after the protection of St. George was drawn to the enemy, cast about among the country's native men for some one worthy of canonization, and naturally selected the warrior who had "whipped the devil" as deserving of being set against him who had vanquished the dragon. Pennsylvania troops of Washington's command were the first to inscribe "St. Tammany" on their banners, and they selected the 12th of May, which tradition assigned for the new saint's nativity, for appropriate celebration. A wigwam was erected, a pole, crowned with a liberty-cap, and bearing aloft a tomahawk, wampum and other Indian paraphernalia, was planted in the earth, and around this, after the representative of the great sachem, who was personified by a comrade, duly accoutred and painted for the occasion, had emerged from the wigwam, to which he again retired and delivered a "talk" full of exhortations to love of liberty and courage in battle, they all danced with feathers in their caps and bucks' tails dangling down behind.

The practice spread throughout the army; St. Tammany and his natal day were both adopted; forts were christened with his name, and the 12th of May was regularly commemorated until, shortly before the war with Great Britain, by order of the secretary of war, General Dearborn, the festival was forbidden, as tending to debauchery among the troops.

But St. Tammany's early popularity was not confined to the army. Civilian societies bearing his name sprang up in many localities. The object was simply festivity. There was a procession of men, women and children, all decked out with bucks' tails and other forest adornments, to a grove where the wigwam and liberty pole had been erected, and where, after an address from St. Tammany's representative the time was spent in games and dances on the green. At one time it appeared likely that St. Tammany's Day would excel the Fourth of July in popular regard, but it lacked one enduring element of popularity—its observance was not participated in by fashionable people. The wealthier portion of the community turned up their noses at the vulgar parade, and as a consequence the celebration of the 12th of May soon died out, and the St. Tammany societies disappeared, except that of New York, which still observes the 12th of May within the order.

Gen. Grant and Chinese Immigration.

[Talk with a San Francisco Reporter.]

Reporter—I presume, general, you have had a good opportunity to study the Chinese question abroad?

Gen. Grant—No; I have not. You will recollect that I left here before it attained any prominence or political importance whatever, and I have had no opportunity of examining it in its California bearings. My views on it were expressed, as far as I could form them, in my speech at Penang, which was delivered hastily and without warning. Mr. Young tells me that your papers published it. I said then that the importation of a race of slaves to this coast, if such was their condition, was a great evil; but if they came as other citizens did, I saw no objection. But, as I said before, the Chinese question is a new one to me.

Reporter—What did you hear from the Chinese officials?

Gen. Grant—I heard enough to know that they are opposed to the Chinese emigration to this country, except for commercial purposes, and that they are ready to co-operate with the United States in ameliorating the evil.

Reporter—Do you say this authoritatively?

Gen. Grant—I received it from the highest dignitaries of the empire.

Davis the Representative Southern Democrat.

[From the Memphis Avalanche, Dem.]

It is a senseless prejudice that would prevent the election of Jefferson Davis to the United States senate. He is the ablest man in the south. He more truly represents southern democratic opinion than any man in the country. The furious assaults upon Davis by northern journals fourteen years after the close of the war shows a mean malignancy of spirit in no wise creditable to human nature. There is not one spark of magnanimity in the breasts of Davis' defamers. To gain a party advantage the thoroughly unscrupulous northern press do not hesitate to give circulation to the most absurd falsehoods regarding both the public and private character of Jefferson Davis. Mississippians will honor their state and confer a great favor on the people of the whole country by sending Davis to the United States senate.

M. Thiers is said to have left no writings except the two thousand pages of notes which were to form his great philosophical work! These were deposited with the Bank of England in November, 1870, and are still there.

Daily Oregonian.

TUESDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 14, 1879.

THE RUST QUESTION.

NEW TACOMA, Oct. 8, 1879.

To the Editor of the Oregonian:

The lecture of Prof. C. H. Dwinelle, delivered before the State Agricultural Society of California on the subject of "Rust in Wheat," as reported in the DAILY OREGONIAN of the 20th ult., is calculated to awaken an interest on that important subject, and it comes in good time, too for us, for Oregon and Washington territory are soon to become the wheatfields of the American continent, and an intelligent inquiry into the causes of the blight, incident to the wheat crop, is of vital importance.

The professor appears to have given the subject much thought and makes some valuable suggestions. But that the "rust" in wheat is the result of a fungus growth, [illegible] in the stalk and leaves of the [illegible] plant, is unphilosophical. The professor even suggests the difficulty in which the spores of his fungus, after being carried through the air, are to find lodgment beneath the cuticle of the stalk and leaves;—for he says "the microscope reveals the fact that the spores are larger than the pores of the [illegible]." Then the natural inquiry is, how does the embryo fungus get under the cuticle? The lecturer fails to enlighten us on this subject.

The next equally unnatural and unsatisfactory theory is, that "the rust must find its way through the stem and leaves of the [illegible] plant." In what form and how developed we are not told. It is hardly likely that the spores of the fungus, having size and solid substance, could be squeezed through the diminutive capillary cells in the growth of the plant and grain food finds [illegible] for their nourishment. Therefore [illegible] that the professor has presented [illegible] even a reasonable theory, much less [illegible] a remedy.

[illegible] a difficult task to attack a theory, [illegible] when it is unsupported by facts. [illegible] a true theory—with unmistakable [illegible] foundation, is often attended [illegible] difficulties. It would probably [illegible] egotism in me, to say, that my [illegible] wheat rust, is the true one, but I [illegible] and let it go into the market for [illegible] worth.

[illegible] hardly be presumed that one who [illegible] much of his mind and affections to [illegible] and development of clams, should [illegible] personal knowledge on the subject of [illegible] culture. [illegible] humble servant not only enjoys [illegible] at a farm house, but gleans in [illegible] dinner chat, with an intelligent [illegible] great deal of valuable information [illegible] observing man is sure to garner up, [illegible] digesting them into theories. [illegible] of ideas and suggestions upon [illegible] of agriculture, including the failures, [illegible] and their causes, frequently [illegible] derived from personal observation.

[illegible] series of facts, consistent with [illegible] are linked together, a theory is [illegible] formed, but a remedy [illegible] and inevitably suggested. One [illegible] that rust always attacks the [illegible] there are heavy dews, or in [illegible] another when no wind prevails [illegible] shines very hot during the [illegible]. Another, that the moisture [illegible] of fog concentrates on the leaves [illegible] the wheat in globules; an[illegible] this time the stalk and [illegible] tender and easily broken.

[illegible] these are facts every intelligent [illegible] in wheat ought to know [illegible] that they are facts, is it [illegible] theory that instead of the [illegible] development of fungus, the [illegible] on the globules of water, [illegible] of the stalk and leaves, [illegible] severing the delicate [illegible] cells, and cutting off the [illegible] food? This sap, intended [illegible] of albumen, flows out, and [illegible] with the atmosphere and [illegible] rust.

[illegible] is apparent—raise the wind, [illegible] stalk, and let the surplus [illegible] to quench the thirst of the [illegible] ground, and you will have [illegible]. One intelligent farmer [illegible] by the lesson he learned [illegible] of lower Central America [illegible] at the propagating season [illegible] fruit, and used artificial [illegible] the pollen. This farmer [illegible] one of his boys at [illegible] dragged it over the tops of [illegible] good shaking that it re[illegible] the water off the wheat, and [illegible] his negligent neighbors kept [illegible] with rust.

CLAM-EATER.

[illegible] and Preserve Cider.

[New York Sun.]

[illegible] only attainable from [illegible] and the fruit should therefore [illegible] examined and wiped before [illegible] use hair cloth or gunny [illegible]. As the cider runs from [illegible] through a hair sieve into [illegible] that will hold as much [illegible] in one day. In one [illegible] the pomace will rise [illegible] in a short time grow very [illegible] little white bubbles break [illegible] off the liquid through a [illegible] placed about three inches [illegible] so that the lees may be [illegible]. The cider must be drawn off [illegible] casks, preferably fresh [illegible] closely watched. The [illegible] bubbles, before mentioned, [illegible] at the bunghole, rack it [illegible] necessary to repeat this [illegible] fill up the cask with cider [illegible] like that originally contained [illegible] tumbler of warm sweet [illegible]. For very fine cider [illegible] add at this stage of the process [illegible] pound of glucose (starch [illegible] portion of white sugar. [illegible] then be allowed to remain [illegible] until the cider has acquired [illegible]. In the mean time clean [illegible] should be prepared as [illegible] strips of rags are dipped [illegible] sulphur, lighted and burned in the [illegible] bung laid loosely on the [illegible] so as to retain the sulphur [illegible] the barrel. Then tie up half [illegible] mustard seed in a coarse muslin [illegible] in the barrel, fill the barrel [illegible] about a quarter of a pound of [illegible] fine gelatine dissolved in hot [illegible] is the old fashioned way, and [illegible] in the same condition as when [illegible] the barrel, if kept in a cool place. [illegible] Professional cidermakers are [illegible] sulphite (sulphite of lime), in[illegible] and sulphur vapor. It is [illegible] convenient and effectual. To [illegible] requisite to add one-eighth [illegible] of the [illegible] cask; [illegible] quart of [illegible] the cask [illegible] shaking or [illegible] allow [illegible] may be [illegible] which [illegible] state of [illegible] about [illegible] will prevent [illegible] of it. [illegible] to the [illegible] should be [illegible] down. [illegible] sassafras, [illegible] the bottom [illegible] bicarbonate [illegible] the acids, [illegible] helps to neutralize free acids.

and renders the liquor effervescent when unstoppered; but if used in excess it may prejudicially affect the taste.

Fat Breeding Stock at Fairs.

For some years past there has been a growing feeling among the managers of our more important fairs that breeding stock shall not be shown fat. That breeding animals are not shown in breeding condition is undeniably not their fault, and that they are shown fat is as undeniably the fault of the breeders or owners themselves. Nevertheless so long as premiums are awarded to the most obese specimens, in many cases bought up, fattened, and hippodromed over the country for for the special purpose of taking premiums, the animals themselves often being naturally infertile, so long will it be practiced.

The rules and regulations of some of our most important state fairs contain provisions that breeding animals shall be shown in breeding condition only. The fault, if any, in the awarding of premiums in such cases lies entirely with the awarding committees. In many cases such committees award the premiums to fat animals, and honestly, either from a lack in judgment, or, what amounts to the same thing, from the superficial (apparent) superiority which fat animals possess. A critical judge would not be deceived by masses of fat lying about in huge lumps, in fact an absolute deformity.

Years ago, when the tallow was one of the most valuable parts of a beef animal, the fault was not so glaring. When the average individual was obliged to use a tallow dip to furnish light at night the more fat an animal carried the more valuable it was to the butcher. Now all this is changed. The more flesh an animal now carries the more valuable it becomes and if the fat be intermixed (marbled) with the lean in just proportions it adds to the value of the flesh. A muscular animal is apt to so carry its fat, while the hog-like animal carries it in layers and masses. Thus the building up of a breed containing masses of superfluous fat, fit only for the trying tanks, is building directly against sound judgment and the best interests of the credit side of the ledger account. In the case of breeding animals this becomes absolutely vicious.

Many of our best breeders saw this years ago. They have steadily been working since to produce smooth, compact animals that will carry heavy and firm masses of flesh evenly distributed, but especially heavy in the prime parts. Yet, as a rule, this class of cattle do not seem to meet with favor among judges at our fairs. In a majority of cases the mountains of fat get the ribbons. It seems hard to get out of old ruts; to change an idea contracted long ago. Nevertheless, we are making progress, and people are gradually becoming educated to the new conditions required in animals intended for human food. In too many cases the judges themselves are not experts.

Clover as a Renewer of Soil.

[From the Country Gentleman.]

Rye, oats, clover, barley and pearl millet, are the principal soiling crops, all of which are valuable and enormously productive when grown in good land. Of late our farmers have neglected sowing clover either for soiling or for hay, giving as a reason that cattle are not fond of it and do not eat it readily. Recent experiments have convinced us most fully that it is one of the best crops we have for soiling, inasmuch as from three to four crops may be cut. We cut the first clip early in June, and now we are going over it again, and we have no doubt that we can get another cutting, and perhaps a fourth. When fed in this way it will go very much farther than when the cattle are allowed to run in the field, since the growth is so rank that very much of it is trodden under foot and wasted. When the first cutting was made, it stood about two feet high and very thick and leafy. It was fed to cows and they ate it with great avidity; in fact much better than they did a like quantity of either rye or oats. After the first cutting it sprouted up at once and grew wondrously; and the second crop is much better than the first being more juicy and tender. After repeated trials with most of the crops grown for soiling, we are fully convinced that red clover is fully as good as any, whether milk, butter or cheese is to be produced. No other forage crop keeps the stock in better condition; while the amount of fodder gathered from an acre is not exceeded save by corn fodder and pearl millet. But while we are pleased with the trial as given above, we would not by any means recommend clover alone. Variety is just as essential in soiling as in any other branch or system of farming, and more so than when the stock is allowed free range, as in the latter case they can choose for themselves just what grasses to eat. Clover also does not impoverish the land like the other forage crops, and a small amount of manure will give a most abundant yield. Each crop, also, is more tender and succulent than the one last harvested, so that as fall advances the fodder becomes more like the aftermath of our meadows and mowing lots.

Use Dr Mintie's English Dandelion Liver Pills.

Every family should keep the Dandelion Pills on hand.

See what the druggists say about Dr. Mintie's medicines: "Everybody speaks highly of them"—C. H. Woodard & Co., druggists, Portland. "All who take them recommend them."—John A. Child, druggist, Portland. Messrs. Abrams & Carroll, wholesale druggists San Francisco, say: "We regard Dr. Mintie's Nephreticum as the best Kidney and Bladder remedy before the public." All druggists keep these medicines.

SIR ASTLEY COOPER'S VITAL RESTORATIVE.

The great English remedy—has made more cures of Nervous Debility, Seminal Weakness Lost Manhood, nocturnal emissions, lassitude, inability for mental labor, despondency, and such diseases as are induced by youthful follies and excesses, than all other medicines combined.

It is not a stimulant nor excitant, is perfectly safe to take, is not a quack nostrum, and produces results that are wonderful.

Price, $3 a bottle. Four times the quantity, $10. Buy a bottle. It will not disappoint you. Hodge, Davis & Co., wholesale agents.

Read and Learn for Yourself.

Many valuable discoveries and much useful knowledge is kept from the world, because of the immense expense in making them known to the people. This is not the case with BOSCHEE'S GERMAN SYRUP. Although but a few years introduced into this country, its sale now reaches in every town and village in the United States. Its wonderful success in curing consumption, severe Coughs, Pneumonia, Asthma and all other diseases of the throat and lungs, was first made known by distributing every year, for three years, over 400,000 bottles to the afflicted, free of charge, by druggists. No such a test of merit was ever given before to any other preparation. Could you ask more? Go to your druggist and get a bottle for 75 cents and try it. Sample bottles 10 cents.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED States for the District of Oregon.—In Admiralty—Monition—No 354. The steamship Great Republic. Whereas, Pierre B. Cornwall, sole owner of the wrecked steamship Great Republic did on July 5, 1879, file his petition in the above entitled court, praying for a limitation of liability as provided in sections 4283, 4284 and 4285 of the Revised Statutes of the United States; and, whereas, on August 9, 1879, an order was made by said court allowing said petition, and appointing J. B. Stoddard, Esq., of Portland, Oregon, trustee to receive from said Cornwall a transfer of all his interest in said vessel and freight, in trust for all persons who may be entitled to the benefit thereof; and, whereas, said Cornwall did on September 22, 1879, file in said court his transfer to said trustee of all his interest aforesaid; now, therefore, in accordance with said order of said court, this is to cite and admonish all persons claiming damages on account of the loss and destruction of said steamship Great Republic to appear before this court and make due proof of their respective claims before the clerk thereof, designated as a commissioner for such purpose, on or before January 1, 1880.

Witness the Hon. Matthew P. Deady, Judge of said court, and the seal thereof affixed at Portland in said district this September 25, 1879.

they had gathered to gaze at and cheer had not yet appeared. Finally, however, the four blacks came up the gangway pirouetting and dancing, as if aware of their important office in the procession, to the imminent peril of the two ragged edges of the dense masses of humanity that packed the street on either side of the carriage as it slowly proceeded. A stop of half a minute took place at the corner of Front street and one enthusiastic individual seized the opportunity to rush up to the carriage and grasp General Grant's hand with, "How are you general?" The veteran of Appomattox was compelled to yield a hand; but gazed at the attacking party with the patient and long suffering look [illegible] of the martyr. [illegible] the cordiality that he has ever been since the Tokio landed him in San Francisco. The proces-

[illegible] street for the schools. From some oversight, perhaps partially excusable under the circumstances, but two policemen were on duty, and they were utterly powerless to keep the crowd from the sidewalks. Every effort possible was made by several friends to get room, but without avail.

The high school took position on the east side of Sixth street, near the center. Harrison street school filed in good order on to the sidewalk on the west side, but the vast and immovable crowd which had taken possession of the space completely shut out all their view. The central school were comfortably arranged on the southeast quarter of the school block, while the school yard, and the North school were similarly marshaled on the northeast quarter of the block. The whole number of school children present was about 1800.

from the building was an old and tattered flag which belonged to the company of troops in which General Sheridan served when an obscure and subordinate officer, at old Fort Yamhill in this state.

From the postoffice to the Clarendon hotel, by way of Morrison and Front streets, the procession again passed an almost unbroken line of decorations. The fronts of English firms as well as American, were gaily trimmed, the store of R. C. Janion & Co. being conspicuous for its display. A notable incident of the decorations was the ornamentation of various buildings in the Chinese quarter. Several of the [illegible] plays were costly and in good taste. All in all, the array was creditable to Portland's [illegible] we shall not look upon its like again.

[illegible] very fine appearance—in fact constituted the "gem of the procession."

The four splendid coal black horses used drawing the barouche in which Gen. Grant, Mayor Thompson, Gen. Howard and Gov. Thayer were seated, were furnished by Messrs. Woodward & Magoon of this city.

Mrs. Grant, like most other ladies, is afraid of storms, and frequently on their journeyings has given utterance to fears of going to the bottom of the sea. Yesterday, when the St. Paul ran on the sand, Gen. Grant, addressing his wife familiarly, said: "Julia, you ought to be satisfied now, we've gone to the bottom at last."

General Grant's memory of important events in his early days is simply wonderful. Mr. Lloyd Brooke was with Grant at Natchitoches, Miss., in 1844, and in the course of

ing. In the early part of November he was ordered to make a demonstration against Belmont, a point on the Mississippi river, to prevent the crossing of rebel troops into Missouri. With 3100 men he attacked 7000 confederates, broke up and destroyed their camp, and retired to his transports with 200 prisoners and two pieces of artillery. In February, 1862, at his own request, he was allowed to attack Fort Henry, on the Tennessee river, in conjunction with a naval force, and after a light engagement the garrison surrendered. Without waiting for orders General Grant moved on to Fort Donelson, 12 miles distant, on the Cumberland river, and with 15,000 men attacked the fortress, which was defended by 21,000 men and heavy artillery. Here was the turning point in the General's career, and with the fall of Donelson came the plaudits of the people and recognition from the Government. The fight lasted three days and on the 15th Grant carried the works by assault, ca-land the General has explored France, Italy, Turkey, Russia, India and China, having been received everywhere with great consideration and respect, by Kings, Queens, Emperors and potentates generally.

General Grant arrived in San Francisco from China on the 20th of last month. His splendid reception in that city and throughout California our readers are familiar. He is now among us for a short time, whence he goes directly to the eastern States.

Genealogy of the Grants.

In the life of Grant by Dana and Wilson, there is the following note on the Grant genealogy: "Fairbairn's British Family Antiquity, vol. vii, states that the original of the Grants is somewhat doubtful, and whether they were originally Scotch [illegible] from Denmark or France, cannot

It is certain that the clan had become great and powerful in the early days of the Scotch monarchy. Gregory Grant, was "Sheriff Principal" of Inverness, between 1214 and 1249. John Grant commanded the right wing of the Scotch army at Halidon Hill, 1333, and was defeated. About [illegible] the clan became divided into clan Chiaran and clan Allan. They held great possessions in the Strathspey country, and in the Jacobite [illegible] adhered to the Protestant and Whig cause.

The Strathspey country, the original home of the Grants, lies in the northeastern part of Scotland, along the course of the picturesque river Spey, in the shires of Inverness, [illegible] Banff, and is remarkable for its beautiful [illegible] and noble forests of fir.

In "Collectanea Topographica et Genealogica," vol. vii, it is stated that Lieutenant Francis Grant was buried in Hampshire, England, December, 9, 1781, and that his [illegible] bears as a crest a burning mount with the motto "Steadfast." THE NORTHWEST.

The Willamette Valley

Wheat is worth 97 cents aboard the cars at Irving

The west side road now carries the mail through from Portland to McMinnville

The Dallas council has ordered new sidewalks to be built along the principal streets of that town

The west-side railroad extension has almost reached Derry the station on Colonel Nesmith's place

During a general row in a saloon at Independence last week Wm Cornelius was shot in the leg by J R Cooper

Some wretch recently shot and badly wounded a colt belonging to Mr T A Shane, of Salem. A valuable dog was shot at the same time

Prices current at Eugene Wheat 94c per bushel, oats, 35c, butter 25 per pound lard, 10c, eggs 20c per dozen bacon sides 10c; hams, 12½c shoulders, 6c flour $6 per barrel.

Hon. Stephen Staats, in a communication to the Riverside, suggests connecting Dallas with the west side railroad by a branch to Dixie, and also the building of a road from that place to Salem.

The McMinnville warehouse men are complaining bitterly because they cannot get cars to ship wheat from that point while a dozen or so have been taken up the track. The side track there is occupied continually with flats loaded with iron and other railroad material.

Dallas Itemizer: The board of equalization refused to reduce the tax on the railroad land in this county, which was assessed at $1 50 per acre. It is claimed by the railroad company that they are willing to sell the whole amount for $1 50 per acre, but no affidavit having been filed, as required by law it was decided to leave it as assessed by our assessor

The Yamhill Reporter has it from good authority that the railroad company will establish a depot at the cross roads near St Joe, for the accommodation of Lafayette and surrounding country. This will be a great convenience to that town, and will put many a dollar into the pocket of the railroad company, as all the freight and passenger traffic would go by river had the depot been located at the point first intended—on the bank of the Yamhill.

Yamhill Reporter, 10th inst.: Wheat has again advanced and again fallen a little in price. During the week it has once reached $1 [illegible], but had receded last evening to $1 05. These quotations are for McMinnville, where we observe that no sales worth mentioning have been made. From Sheridan we have quite a different report. In the neighborhood of 30 000 bushels changed hands there during the week, at from 97 cents to $1 per bushel, sacked. We have no reports from other markets in the county

Work has begun on the projected wagon road from down towards Forest Grove, across the coast range and into Tillamook via the Dougherty river. This work is being done by the railroad company. They have a lot of land on the route which will be greatly enhanced in value by means of the road, and are coming forward liberally on their share of the enterprise. The people of Tillamook, also have taken considerable stock in it, and from all appearances it will probably be carried on to completion.

Eastern Oregon.

The new Monumental mill will start up on the 1st of November or near that time.

Peter Cowran, a plasterer, engaged on the Umatilla House at The Dalles, died on the night of the 4th inst of apoplexy.

F. T. Sharp, who lives about three miles from The Dalles, sold 1500 bushels of wheat to the Highland mills, in that city, for 85 cents last Monday. The average production of wheat grown between The Dalles and Fifteen-mile creek, this year, was 32 bushels to the acre.

The steamer Thompson, on her up trip to The Dalles on the 7th inst., had 220 white passengers, most of them returning from the [illegible] together with two car-loads of Chinamen, which were sent on their jubilant way to the new town on Snake river, where the Pend d'Oreille division of the Northern Pacific railroad begins.

United Inland Empire: The Portland and San Francisco markets are quietly draining our pastures of their fat cattle—faster than we think they can be replenished. As the rainy season sets in the Barlow Gate and Wallace Pass both get too muddy for driving, and then the O. S. N. Co.'s boats have to carry the beeves to tide-water. In the neighborhood of Prineville there are probably some [illegible] head of merchantable beeves for sale in small bands. Out in Grant county, Heipenstall has purchased 2700 head at an average [illegible] per head, in gold. Phelps & Wadleigh have still large bands of cattle about the Ochocos, from which they supply their Yakima herds as fast as they become depleted by drives to Puget Sound. A band at Stein mountain, owned by Dr. Glenn, of Colusa, recently sold for an average of $13 per head, all around, without regard to size, but there must have been a good many over two years old to have realized that figure.

Southern Oregon.

A good deal of fencing has been burned in Douglas county through carelessness in burning stubble fields.

Recently rains have wet the ground sufficiently to be in good plowing order, and farmers of Willamette valley, as well as those of Umpqua, are plowing, not by the acre, but by the hundreds of acres. Some of the land is being sown, and no doubt a greater proportion than was ever sown before in the fall will be put in, as rust never injures fall-sown grain.

An important suit in ejectment has been commenced in the U. S. circuit court by Mr H. H. Luse, against the following parties owning land in and about the town of Marshfield, on Coos Bay: F. Mark, A Lobree, John Tupper, J. Ernest, Isaiah Hacker, W F. Hill, Daniel Kronenburg, W. H. Noble, C. W. Tower, O. Lakely, G. Stauf, W Lund, A. Nasburg, Wm Christiansen, G Watson, C H. Golden, John Kenyon, William Worden, Jonathan Oakley et al, David Young, J. J. Canfield, Roderick Millage, Frank Lingren, Wm Richert, O. C. Smith, O Ralston, James Webster, J. M. Siglin, David Campbell, Lyman M. Noble, W G Webster, Gus Seymour, J. O. Bull, George Guy, Thomas [illegible], Hans Reed, George Davis, Geo Blood, J. Rains, et al., and A. Nasburg, et. al. The attorneys for plaintiff are John Burnett and R. S. Strahan, Esqs. The friends of Mr Luse claim he has a good case and the defendants have no legal title to the property. Mr Luse claims to have purchased the patent of the town site from the original patentee, and the present claimants have only "squatters' rights," and the fact that they are in possession of the land in dispute. Probably a test case will be made by the trial of one of the parties.

Read and Learn for Yourself.

Many valuable discoveries and much useful knowledge is kept from the world, because of the immense expense in making them known to the people. This is not the case with BOSCHEE'S GERMAN SYRUP. Although but a few years introduced into this country, its sale now reaches in every town and village in the United States. Its wonderful success in curing consumption, severe Coughs, Pneumonia, Asthma, and all other diseases of the throat and lungs, was first made known by distributing every year, for three years, over 400 000 bottles to the afflicted, free of charge, by druggists. No such a test of merit was ever given before to any other preparation. Could you ask more? Go to your druggist and get a bottle for 75 cents and try it. Sample bottles 10 cents.

TUESDAY MORNING OCTOBER 14 18

WELCOME TO GENERAL GRANT

To-day General Grant will be [illegible] There are [illegible] so skeptical as to be inclined to question the genuineness of the reception which has been prepared for him. It is greater than all the magnificent welcomes accorded [illegible] everywhere [illegible] nations [illegible] is the controlling [illegible] several [illegible] cosmopolitan [illegible] men [illegible] the preservation [illegible] The [illegible] which [illegible] and [illegible] transfer [illegible] the [illegible] Again it has been observed that what honors General Grant has received [illegible] foreign [illegible] This has awakened curiosity at home. It has shown us what we had before taken little note of namely that we have a citizen who is recognized the world over as a very eminent man, and it has suggested to us that it is not seemly that we should be behind foreigners in recognizing the position of a great character in our own history. Our ex-presidents on retiring from office have usually dropped into a decent oblivion. It has been said and truly no doubt, that when General Grant retired from the presidency he might have traveled all over the United States without creating any great excitement or awakening any remarkable enthusiasm. But now his visit to any part of the country is attended by demonstrations little less than unheard of among us. The reason has been stated with a true insight. Thus: On retiring from the presidency General Grant went to Europe and there he encountered a world whose only clear ideas of him were associated with his military achievements. He was received as a great American soldier and as one who had been accorded the highest civil honors his country could bestow. The curious result has been that his fame has been growing at home through the reactionary effect of the honors and courtesies extended to him abroad. The American people really had almost forgotten how great a general they had among them until the world reminded them of it. Then they began to follow his European career with steadily increasing interest. They came to realize that in all the splendid pageants prepared to compliment him, it was after all the American nation that was being thus exalted. And so when after his long and brilliant journey their great countryman returns to them they are eager to display that feeling of national pride and national exultation which the lavish honors showered upon him by foreigners have stimulated and developed. Great military achievements have always been a basis for great and enduring fame. Success as a military leader requires a combination of some of the rarest and greatest qualities of mind. In a war conducted on a great scale success is achieved only by a prodigious concentration of the faculties of a commander on single points, by a clear discrimination of what is vital to a result and what is but trivial or unessential and by a tenacity of purpose which will be shaken by no difficulties nor yield amid those appalling scenes which seem to engulf whole armies. It is the commander who on such occasions maintains his imperturbability and firmness, and who keeps his faculties all about him ready to take advantage of any new situation who wins victories. Almost any other man than Grant would have failed in the first great battle in which he commanded. Had he not possessed the extremely rare qualities that distinguish him there would have been a defeat at Shiloh, and his military career would have ended as that of many another man has ended under similar circumstances. As the world has always honored the qualities of a great soldier so no doubt it always will. To the performance of his civil duties General Grant brought much of the same inflexible purpose. But duties of this sort are of a nature very different from those that devolve on the military commander. In war everything must yield to overwhelming necessity. In civil administration where nearly every policy is largely a matter of opinion accommodation is the essence of politics. General Grant is not a politician and has never professed to be. But he is a man who has the true American instinct. He believes in his country. He has shown a steadfastness which has been little moved either by praise or blame. He has not been daunted by "the high winds that blow upon high hills." In lowly station or elevated place he has been very much the same man. These are facts of which the people take note. They are part of the general estimate of his character. They enter into the composite reasons which give cordiality to the popular welcome. But in connection with all this it is only truth to say that we have learned much from abroad. We feel that we owe it to our country to honor the man who has honored it and whose great services are willingly acknowledged by all classes of his countrymen.

CALIFORNIA'S RAILROAD QUESTION

A section of the new constitution of California declares that— "Persons and property transported over any railroad or by any other transportation company or individual shall be delivered at any station landing or port, at charges not exceeding the charges for the transportation of persons and property of the same class in the same direction to any more distant station port or landing." This provision will become the law of the state on the first of January. At present the rate on grain from Los Angeles to San Francisco is five dollars a ton while from Tehachapi one hundred and twenty five miles nearer to San Francisco it is six dollars. Now the question for points in California lying out from San Francisco is will their rate be increased or will the rate from towns nearer the city be lowered. A journal of Southern California says it is now feared by many that the rates from distant points must go up since the rates for towns within one or two hundred miles of San Francisco cannot possibly be lowered to the proportion now charged from distant places. It is evident that the railroad commissioners have a knotty problem on hand. The difficulty already presented shows the impracticability of making a constitution to meet particular cases, like a code.

Hon E B Washburne has been talking about the relations of the two races in the southern states. In reply to a question whether he did not admit that it is exceedingly aggravating to the whites of the south to be outvoted in many localities by their former servants he said that he appreciated that, but the whites allowed themselves [illegible] it was their own fault. If instead of making a race issue they would treat the negroes as citizens having equal political rights with themselves the color line would gradually disappear. But the ex-slave [illegible] think it beneath their dignity to give even the appearance of a willingness to conciliate. If they can't order the [illegible] around as of old they will have no further intercourse with them. This touches the core of the so-called race issue, showing the chief responsibility of it on the whites themselves.

The frequent efforts of Gen. Butler to be elected governor of Massachusetts call to mind a conversation said to have taken place between John Quincy Adams and his father Charles Francis Adams. John Quincy had been nominated several times in regular succession for the governorship and as often had been permitted to remain at home among his books. "My boy," said Charles Francis one day "do you think you really know enough to be governor of Massachusetts?" "Well father" replied the youth of thirty five summers "I shall probably know enough by the time I am elected." So with General Butler. If he does not know enough now to be governor of the commonwealth of Massachusetts he probably will by the time he secures the position.

President Hayes in his recent speech at St Joseph Mo said that when the constitutional amendments were adopted two leading ideas were uppermost: one concerning the relations of the states to the general government and the other concerning the rights of citizens enfranchised by the amendments. The position of the democratic party is antagonistic to the intent of both these ideas. That party again asserts the doctrine of the supremacy of the states over the general government and has virtually nullified the franchises which the amendments were designed to secure.

The Chicago Times an independent journal of democratic proclivities which supported Tilden in 1876 but is now disgusted with the solid south and its methods says: "A solid south means 138 electoral votes, and a solid north means 231 electoral votes. The two together mean the election of the solid north candidate by 93 majority of the electoral votes. They mean that the election will not go to the house, and that it will be no use to unseat republicans and seat democrats with a view to such a contingency."

Several Oregon journals have complained because a postal agent has been sent out here from the east. They have thought it strange that no man could be found in Oregon or Washington for the position. The fact is the department has taken this step because it has had no efficient service here in the office of postal agent for some years, and therefore decided to send from the east a competent and efficient man.

The United States land commission is in session at San Francisco. The object is to take testimony on all matters relating to the public lands with a view to formation of a consistent code for the administration of this important department. The many statutes and decisions certainly form an entanglement which should be reduced to order and system.

Two speeches from General Grant in one day! And for him, long speeches too. Revisiting places familiar to him of old, he is moved to unusual eloquence. We don't now recall another speech of his so long as either one of these two. Oregon could make an orator of him yet if he would only stay awhile.

It is said that Dr Glenn, the same who was not elected governor of California, this year raised 1 200 000 sacks of grain on his ranch in Colusa county. This is equal to about 60 000 tons or enough to load 32 vessels. At $2 a sack this would amount to $2 400 000.

In 1830 the royal library of Paris contained 800 000 volumes and objects of every description. In 1859 the number was 1 200,000. During the last twenty years the increase has been more sensible and the actual number is estimated at 2 000 000.

General Grant in his speech at Astoria remarked that the town was a good deal bigger than when he saw it last. And Astoria might have responded that General Grant was a good deal bigger than when it saw him last.

Since 1870 Protestants have built fourteen churches in Rome opened many schools asylums and reading rooms and distributed millions of bibles and tracts. Several new church edifices are in contemplation.

The latest attempt to measure the speed with which the electric current travels on a wire gave [illegible] miles per second as the result. This is once and a half times round the globe.

The latest estimate of the wheat yield of the United States in 1879 is 441 500 000 bushels. It is estimated that 153 000 000 bushels will be required in Europe.

Last year's wheat crop in California yielded $17 076 944 and the wool crop $[illegible] 000.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—12:35 A. M.—For northern [illegible] coast regions, occasional rain followed by [illegible] partly cloudy weather. For central and [illegible] Pacific: clear or partly cloudy weather.

CITY.

[illegible] THE OREGONIAN.—On a card attached to the door of a private club room on the second floor of Church's building, corner [illegible] and Morrison streets, kept by Theo. [illegible], appears the following: "To the [illegible] who steals my OREGONIAN: Steal the [illegible] Bee, Telegram Standard and San Francisco Bulletin, also all the illustrated papers, [illegible] with Harper's Monthly, but leave me the OREGONIAN. You will also occasionally find a [illegible] gallon demijohn of good whisky [illegible] door. Take that, and be—— to you, [illegible] THE OREGONIAN. The card is signed "Theo. Carton."

[illegible] PATIENT.—Deputy Sheriff W. E. [illegible]wood of Lane county came down on the train yesterday from Roseburg, having [illegible] insane woman named Rhoda [illegible] Russell. The exact cause of Mrs. Russell's [illegible] is not known. She is 30 years of age, has been married, and has no children; [illegible] she is the mother of several [illegible] who have been taken to the skies [illegible] husband. It is not known where her [illegible]. She is inclined to be rather violent [illegible] and has made two or three attempts to take her own life. She is a native of Kentucky.

[illegible] DEPUTY COLLECTOR.—Mr. J. C. [illegible], collector of internal revenue for [illegible], has appointed Mr. Edwin Cartwright deputy collector for the second [illegible] of the district. This division embraces the counties of Wasco, Grant, Baker, [illegible], Umatilla, Columbia, Clatsop, Tillamook and Washington. Mr. Cartwright is [illegible] of Oregon, and has at different [illegible] been prominently identified with [illegible] enterprises. He is a gentleman of [illegible] and well qualified to discharge the [illegible] position to which he has been [illegible].

[illegible] TIMBER.—James H. Tipton, of [illegible] county, was arrested a few days ago [illegible] with cutting timber on lands belonging to the Oregon & California railroad company. These lands have not been surveyed [illegible] government, and the railroad company [illegible] not protect its rights in the [illegible]. The government authorities caused [illegible] to be arrested charged with cutting [illegible] unlawfully. The case came up yesterday [illegible] the United States district court, [illegible] entered a plea of guilty and was fined [illegible] sum he paid and was discharged.

[illegible] TO THE STATE HOUSE.—A terrific [illegible] rain storm set in at Salem about [illegible] Saturday evening and lasted a [illegible] of hours, doing considerable damage [illegible]. Fences were blown down, trees [illegible] and signs stirred up promiscuously. [illegible] got in under the tin roof on the [illegible] and tore it up for a distance [illegible] on the south wing, carrying [illegible] a distance of nearly a [illegible]. The damage to the state house alone [illegible] $300 or $800. Necessary repairs [illegible] at once commenced.

[illegible] MR. LAMSON.—After about two [illegible] Mr. Jeremiah Lamson, father [illegible] Lamson, clerk of the United [illegible] and district courts, departed [illegible] at his home near Sheridan, [illegible] county. The deceased was aged [illegible] years. He was one of the old [illegible] of the state, having come to this [illegible] in the '40's. He was a most exemplary [illegible] and kind husband and father, [illegible] Christian gentleman.

[illegible] ARREST.—Fred James, alias [illegible], arrested yesterday morning, [illegible] stealing a valise containing [illegible] belonging to Mr. D. Forte, of [illegible] the Globe hotel last Thursday. [illegible] property was found in the possession [illegible] accused and identified by the [illegible] had a preliminary hearing [illegible] in the police court, and [illegible] before the grand jury in [illegible].

[illegible] RACES.—Commencing Thursday [illegible] will be three days' races [illegible] Portland park. First day will [illegible] mile free for all three year [illegible] there will be a trotting race, [illegible] mile heats. Second day there [illegible] race, mile heats, 3 in 5, free [illegible] which have never beat 2:35. [illegible] running race.

[illegible].—About 5 o'clock last evening [illegible], while helping to [illegible] Corbett & Failing's new block fell [illegible] to the ground, a distance [illegible] feet. He was conveyed to [illegible] immediately afterward. It is [illegible] injuries are not serious.

[illegible].—An action for damages [illegible] against Captain D. H. Rivers, [illegible], in the U. S. circuit court [illegible] by Pat Riley, a seaman on board [illegible]. The captain was arrested this [illegible] by the deputy U. S. marshal, and [illegible] for his appearance.

[illegible] RECEPTION.—The young people [illegible] Taylor street M. E. church [illegible] giving a grand sociable and reception [illegible] next Friday evening. Great [illegible] are being made to make this [illegible] memorable one for the young people [illegible]. More soon.

[illegible] FAIR.—There seems to be an [illegible] demand for room in the pavilion [illegible] coming Mechanics' Fair. Already one [illegible] and ninety-three applicants have [illegible] space, each application accompanied [illegible] name of the article intended to [illegible].

[illegible] WEDDING.—Invitations are out for [illegible] wedding party at the residence of [illegible] Ladd on next Friday evening. [illegible] promises to be one of social [illegible]. The invitations announce that [illegible] will be received.

[illegible] APPOINTED.—A. F. Russell, Esq., [illegible] some time past has been acting as [illegible] of the Oregon penitentiary, is lying [illegible] ill, and M. A. Miller, Esq., has [illegible] appointed to fill the vacancy.

[illegible].—James L. Daly, of this city, [illegible] appointed a notary public by Gov. [illegible].

[illegible], the well known caterer, is now located [illegible] the Occidental hotel restaurant.

AN INQUIRY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

We have a mechanic in the city who conducts his business on chemical science, the end and aim of which is purification. Why should he not be allowed a place to carry on his business at the Mechanics' Fair? He is a [illegible]. The saloon keeper is neither a mechanic nor scientist. Why should he be allowed to carry on his business, the end of which putrefaction?

EQUAL RIGHTS.

PORTLAND, Oct 1[illegible], 1879.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Permit me through your columns to express the surprise and regret which is felt by many citizens by the report which has gained credence, that the coming Mechanics' Fair is to be marred by the sale of intoxicating drinks in the pavilion.

For a considerable time many ladies have been engaged in preparing articles for the fair which should represent the refined taste and skill which is possessed by them, which is of no mean order, and would be a source of pride and emulation to all who have the interests of our community at heart. It is now felt by some of them that they cannot consent to exhibit at all the articles they have prepared for that purpose, while the traffic in liquors, with all its attendant evils, is permitted at the fair, which should only be consecrated to the further ance of the industrial arts and the elevation of the public taste. Is it too late to hope that something may be done to avert this evil, thus putting the coming and future fairs upon an assured foundation of harmony and prosperity?

J. F. H.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Having read the letter of Rev. J. H. Acton in a recent issue of your valuable paper and sharing largely in his sentiments, I am constrained to add that which Mr. Acton would have mentioned had he then known it. The good ladies of the Relief Society (Orphans' Home), to whom had been tendered space in the pavilion for the serving of refreshments, felt constrained to decline the offer upon learning that a whisky saloon would be located near their stand. Did the management see a ghastly appropriateness in the association of these two industries? Perhaps so, as in their mind's eye they saw each, with banners inscribed respectively "Rumshop," "Orphan's Home," and with connecting arch emblazoned, "If the rumshop, then the Orphan's Home," as emblematical of their inseparability! What more fitting?

ORPHAN.

THE NAVAL COURT.

The naval court which has been in session in this city for several days for the purpose of investigating charges against Capt. James Swan, master of the British bark Anne Main, preferred by J. D. Tulloch, the first officer of the vessel, has made the following findings:

The court finds John D. Tulloch guilty of disobedience of orders and refusing to allow the men of his watch to obey orders.

The court sentenced Tulloch to suspension of certificate for the period of six months, to be dismissed from the Anne Main, and to pay one-fourth of the cost of the court. This will amount to about $-0.

The court finds Andrew Peterson and Alexander guilty of insubordination and disobedience of orders; sentenced to pay a fine of ten shillings each and one-eighth of the cost of the court, which will amount to about $20 each.

The court considers that the state of discipline on board the Anne Main to be attributable in a great measure to the indiscretion and want of self respect of Capt. Swan, and censures him, besides ordering him to pay a fine of one-half of the costs of the court. The sum required from the captain will be about $160.

The costs of holding the naval court would have been much less had the Anne Main not been consigned to Mr. Laidlaw, the British vice consul. As the vessel came to that gentleman, he did not consider it proper for him to hold the court, as he had an interest in the result. Had Mr. Laidlaw acted as president of the court the costs would have been considerably less.

PERSONAL.

Col. Chris. Taylor, of Dayton, is in the city.

W. H. Byars, editor and proprietor of the Roseburg Plaindealer, is in the city in response to an invitation to greet Gen. Grant.

Hon. D. B. Ward, one of the representatives from King county, Washington territory, is in the city and gave us a pleasant call last evening.

Mr. James Oliver of South Bend, Ind., with his family, is on a visit to Oregon. He is the head of the South Bend Iron Works, the most extensive plow manufactory in the country. Mr. Oliver's wife and daughter are guests of M. S. Burrell, Esq.

Mr. Grover B. Simpson has been appointed a mail agent on the route between this city and Astoria, to succeed Capt. E. H. Tuttle, whose promotion was recently announced. Mr. Simpson is well qualified for the position and will doubtless give satisfaction.

GRANT CONCERT.

The citizens' committee of arrangements have, all other statements to the contrary notwithstanding, announced that the official entertainment for Thursday evening will be the oratorio of "The Messiah," at Turn Halle, by the Handel and Haydn society, and that Gen. Grant and party will by their special invitation be present. A space in the middle of the hall will be elegantly carpeted and furnished for this occasion by Messrs. Shindler & Chadbourne. There are still several desirable seats left unsold, and as there is evidently some misunderstanding among the public as regards the sale of these seats to non-subscribers, we are authorized to say that the box plan is at D. W. Prentice & Co.'s music store, and that the remaining seats are at public disposal at regular rates.

AMUSEMENTS.

NEW MARKET THEATER.—This popular place of amusement again opened its doors last evening to a large audience. Never at any previous time was there such a delighted audience as enjoyed the performance of the brilliant comedy of Saratoga last night. There was not a single hitch throughout the evening. Peal after peal of laughter and applause resounded through the house. The play itself is purely American, and Bronson Howard in this play has given one of the wittiest breeziest comedies of modern times. In fact, like good champagne, it is all "fiz." Saratoga will again be performed to-night, and all who want to enjoy a good laugh should attend the theater.

PROMINENT CITIZENS.

By reference to the arrivals of the principal hotels, which are published in our columns, it will be seen that there are at present a large number of prominent citizens of Oregon and Washington territory sojourning in the city. Crowded condition of our columns prevents individualizing.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

Special attention is called to the advertisement of Nathan & Dwight under "New To day."

Geo. H. Himes announces in another column that he is the next best man in the country—for doing all manner of job printing. Those who have had any experience with him will cheerfully corroborate the above statement.

This, together with their already large stock, gives them by far the largest selection in that line ever brought to this city.

For Dyspepsia, Damiana Bitters. Fleckenstein & Mayer are sole agents.

PREPARATIONS FOR GRANT.

THE CITY IN HOLIDAY ATTIRE AND WAITING FOR THE EXPECTED GUEST.

Thousands of People in the City Eager to See the Great Captain and to Participate in the Honors of the Day.

Arrangements for the Procession Completed—List of the Guests Assigned to Carriages—A Patriotic Incident, Etc., Etc., Etc.

Not for many months have the streets of Portland presented such a pleasing scene of animation as on yesterday. Gaudy drapings inspired a holiday feeling, and all day long an immense throng surged to and fro, the great majority of the crowd being people from the country and our neighbor cities. Gay attire lent a bright beauty to the scene, while the bustle of preparation gave an air of business activity, striking and exciting. Rooms at the various hotels had been engaged ahead several days, and each train and steamer arriving brought scores of people. After ten o'clock in the morning it was impossible to get hotel accommodations for love or money. It is estimated that nearly three thousand people not residents of Portland are now in the city, and many more are expected by early trains to-day.

The work of decoration has been going on rapidly since Sunday evening and will be completed by noon to-day. The display of bunting and evergreens is very fine, and when complete will probably surpass any similar display ever made previously in this city. The grand arches at the intersection of Morrison and First streets are not yet completed, but will be rarely handsome.

The Merchants' Exchange is decorated as becomes its calling, in ships' flags, which show to good advantage stretched across the street in two lines, capped by another with a large banner on which is painted "Merchants' Exchange Welcome to Grant." The front is also tastefully decorated in appropriate flags. Inside the rooms, each of the three windows has an American flag joined to one of the three leading nations, Great Britain, France and Germany, while the wall is decorated with ships' flags looped gracefully together. The whole presenting a very fine appearance. General Grant is expected to visit the Exchange on Thursday.

The Portland Light Battery will fire the first salute to-day. Capt. Tom will be stationed at Weidler's mill, and when the St. Paul rounds Swan Island the music of the battery will open.

General Grant will leave here on a special train Thursday morning to Salem. He will return to Portland the same evening.

His stay will be very brief in this state, in consequence of engagements in the east. He will sail hence on the St. Paul Friday morning, the 17th.

Arrangements for the celebration have been completed, and there is no doubt but that it will pass off smoothly. It has been definitely learned that the distinguished party will come from Vancouver on the steamer St. Paul, which will leave for Portland at half past 11 o'clock, and will probably arrive shortly after 1 o'clock, landing at Flanders' dock. The steamboat Lurline will bring the troops and military band, starting two hours before the St. Paul, and will arrive here at half past 10. The steamboat City of Salem with reception committee, members of the general committee of twenty four and members of the press, will leave Pacific dock, at the foot of Salmon street, at 8 o'clock sharp, and proceed to Vancouver, and will accompany the St. Paul on her passage to this city. Upon landing, General Grant will be received as stated yesterday, and the party will be conducted to carriages in the following order:

Carriage No. 1—Mayor Thompson, Gen. Grant, Gov. Thayer and Gen. Howard.

Carriage No. 2—Senator Corbett, Judge Deady, Judge Kelly, Senator Sargent.

Carriage No. 3—Gov. Gibbs, Gen. Miller of San Francisco, Gov. Ferry of Washington territory and Gen. Babbitt.

Carriage No. 4—Hon. J. N. Dolph, Gov. Chadwick, Gen. Sprague, Gen. Forsyth.

Carriage No. 5—Judge Strong, Judge Boise, Judge Bellinger and Judge Harding.

Carriage No. 6—William Reid, Gov. Low of California, Gen. Greene and Senator Nesmith.

Carriage No. 7—J. B. Montgomery, U. S. Grant, Jr., Col. H. A. Morrow and Col. E. L. Bailey.

AN INTERESTING SCENE.

The pupils in the high school and Harrison street department, now attending at the Park street building, were drilling for the reception of the city's coming guest. A magnificent flag, purchased by a subscription taken up among the pupils, was raised on the building for the first time. The pupils filed out of the building and formed in ranks upon the sidewalk, under command of their teachers. When they were arranged and quiet prevailed a signal was given, Prof. Warren raised the national colors to the top of the staff, and as its folds streamed out on the breeze, from the lips of over seven hundred happy children cheer after cheer went up and awakened echoes around like the ringing of merry bells. America and other patriotic airs were then sung by the children with a hearty earnestness. More cheers were given, and the lines reforming again entered the building. Excellent order in the movement was observed, and we expect that among the incidents of the reception to-day none will be more thrilling than the school children's greeting.

GRAND MARSHAL'S CALL.

Members of the general committee and gentlemen who are assigned seats in carriages, as above, [illegible] are in town, will meet at the Board of Trade [illegible] at 12½ P. M. sharp.

J. McCRAKEN.
Grand Marshal.

THE REGATTA.

Wednesday afternoon a four-oared race [illegible] come off in front of the city, on which [illegible] Gen. Grant and party are expected to be present. The course will be from the O. S. N. Co's dock to the foot of Ross Island and return, about three miles.

The following boats and crews have entered for the contest:

Neptune—J. Dunbar, stroke; T. Dick, third; J. Gill, second; T. Dunbar, bow.

Watchwatch—Ed. Hatch, stroke; Jos. Teal, third; A. Whiting, second; Henderson, bow.

The winning crew will be awarded a silver cup inscribed "Grant Commemoration Cup." This prize will be retained permanently by the crew. This cup is on exhibition at B. L. Stone's.

Another silver cup is on exhibition at Henrichsen & Greenberg's, which bears the inscription "The Grant Cup." This cup will be awarded the winning crew, to keep for one year. This is a challenge cup. Any crew winning this cup successively for three years will be allowed to retain it permanently. The race will commence at 2 o'clock P. M.

Col. W. H. Effinger will act as judge for the Neptune and T. A. Davis judge for the Waterwitch. It is to be hoped that General Grant will act as referee. Samuel Greenbaum will act as timekeeper.

The committee and Grant party will be on the steamer City of Salem. Two hundred tickets will be for sale at U. B. Scott & Co's office for admission to the steamer which will follow the race. Tickets $1. A band of music will accompany the steamer. The boat will be handsomely decorated.

GEN. GRANT AT THE THEATER.

An invitation has been issued to General Grant and party to visit the theater to-morrow evening, when the beautiful military play of "Ours" will be given. It is anticipated that the 21st infantry band will appear and the whole performance no doubt be worthy of the distinguished visitor. The curtain will not rise until 8:30 P. M., so that this arrangement will in no wise interfere with the public reception.

WAITING BY THE SEASIDE.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE OREGONIAN.]

ASTORIA, Sunday Evening, Oct. 12.

Astoria passed her Sabbath in anxious waiting. Small crowds gathered on the docks and strained their eyes looking seaward for the expected vessel. Some who had heard that Gen Grant intended to visit Humboldt Bay, gave the positive information that the St. Paul had stopped there, and that she was probably detained by a storm. At half-past 11, through the courtesy of Capt. Flavel, the legislative party boarded the tug Benham which steamed out to the bar, but did not sight the ship bearing the hero upon whom have been showered greater honors than ever before were paid to living man.

The Astoria committee, consisting of W. D. Hare, Col. R. R. Spedden, Dr. W. D. Baker, and M. C. Crosby, accompanied by Gen. O. D. Greene, and press representatives, left Astoria for Fort Stevens on the tug Canby at 6 o'clock Sunday morning, and were hospitably entertained by Major Throckmorton, commander of the post, and Dr. Dickson, post surgeon. A mounted courier was stationed at Point Adams lighthouse to convey to the fort the news as soon as the St. Paul could be sighted. At 2 o'clock the committee becoming impatient, went to the lighthouse.

The sea was unusually calm, and Tillamook rock, twenty miles south, appeared to full view without the aid of a glass. The gentlemen waited until dark, and no sail being in sight, returned to Astoria, accompanied by Major and Mrs. Throckmorton.

The fact that the Elder had fair weather and smooth sailing on her passage led all to believe that the St. Paul could not have been more than twenty-four hours behind her, and fears were entertained that she had met with some accident. Collector Hare resolved, in case the St. Paul did not reach the bar before Monday morning, to send the revenue cutter Tom Corwin down the coast to render aid if necessary.

NEWS NOTES FROM SEATTLE.

[REGULAR CORRESPONDENCE OF THE OREGONIAN.]

SEATTLE, Oct. 13, 1879.

The all absorbing question with the average Seattle citizen now is: Will Gen. Grant pay us a visit or not?

Chicken thieves are again on the wing, and doubled barreled shot-guns are being set in divers places for their reception.

Mr. A. W. Maison, former proprietor of the Union market, and a highly respected citizen of this place, died at his residence in this city on Thursday last of consumption. Mr. Maison had a $5000 insurance policy on his life, drawn in favor of his wife and family.

Lost Seven Pounds in Three Weeks.

Allan's Anti-Fat is a genuine medicine, and will reduce corpulency from two to five pounds per week. Purely vegetable and perfectly harmless, acting entirely on the food in the stomach, preventing the formation of fat. It is also a positive remedy for dyspepsia and rheumatism.

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 11, 1878.
Botanic Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y.—GENTLEMEN: The lady alluded to lost seven pounds in three weeks by the use of Allan's Anti-Fat. Yours truly,
SMITH, DOLITTLE & SMITH,
Wholesale Druggists.

Quinine and Arsenic

Form the basis of many of the Ague remedies in the market, and are the last resort of physicians and people who know no better medicine to employ for this distressing complaint. The effects of either of these drugs are destructive to the system, producing headache, intestinal disorders, vertigo, dizziness, ringing in the ears, and depression of the constitutional health. AYER'S AGUE CURE is a vegetable discovery, containing neither quinine, arsenic nor any deleterious ingredient, and is an infallible and rapid cure for every form of Fever and Ague. Its effects are permanent and certain, and no injury can result from its use. Besides being a positive cure for Fever and Ague in all its forms, it is a superior remedy for Liver Complaints. It is an excellent tonic and preventive as well as cure of all complaints peculiar to malarious marshy and miasmatic districts. By direct action on the Liver and biliary apparatus, it stimulates the system to a vigorous, healthy condition. For sale by all dealers. Hodge, Davis & Co., wholesale agents, Portland.

DELAYED STATE FAIR ITEMS.

Mr. Geo. H. Beach, agent for the Edge Hill vineyard, Cal., took home with him some Oregon products, consisting of a live cinnamon bear, one large pair of elk horns and other articles.

Our friend George H. Bonney, of Vancouver, had on exhibition a fine young horse which is a magnificent stepper, and which will yet make a record among the fast equines of this part of the country.

The total amount of cash premiums awarded this year was $4600. The society issues its warrants on the treasury payable out of any funds not otherwise appropriated. These warrants were salable at 90 cents on the dollar.

Mrs. O. W. Hunt, of Marion county, exhibited some maple syrup, made from the sap of the common soft maple of Oregon, such as are used extensively as shade trees. The syrup has the taste and nearly the flavor of the genuine New England maple syrup.

The chief marshal of the fair grounds had the conduct of the subordinate marshals, gate keepers, etc., under his special employment and control, and by the exercise of economy, cut the running expenses of his department down about $200 less than they were in 1878.

they had gathered to gaze at and cheer had not yet appeared. Finally, however, the four blacks came up the gangway pirouetting and dancing, as if aware of their important office in the procession, to the imminent peril of the two ragged edges of the dense masses of humanity that packed the street on either side of the carriage as it slowly proceeded. A stop of half a minute took place at the corner of Front street and one enthusiastic individual seized the opportunity to rush up to the carriage and grasp General Grant's hand with, "How are you, general?" The veteran of Appomattox was compelled to yield his hand, but glanced at the attacking party with the patient and long suffering look of the martyr to aggressive popular curiosity that he has ever been since the Tokio landed him in San Francisco. The procession [illegible] sixth street for the schools. From some oversight, perhaps partially excusable under the circumstances, but two policemen were on duty, and they were utterly powerless to keep the crowd from the sidewalks. Every effort possible was made by several friends to get room, but without avail.

The high school took position on the east side of Sixth street, near the center. Harrison street school filed in good order on to the sidewalk on the west side, but the vast and immovable crowd, which had taken possession of the street completely shut out all their view. The Central school were comfortably arranged on the southeast quarter of the school block, within the school yard, and the North school were similarly marshaled on the northeast quarter of the block. The whole number of school children present was about 1850.

[illegible] from the building was an old and tattered flag which belonged to the company of troops in which General Sheridan served when an obscure and subordinate officer, at old Fort Yamhill in this state.

From the postoffice to the Clarendon hotel, by way of Morrison and Front streets, the procession again passed an almost unbroken line of decorations. The fronts of English firms as well as American, were gayly trimmed, the store of R. C. Janion & Co. being conspicuous for its display.

A notable incident of the decorations was the ornamentation of various buildings in the Chinese quarters. Several of the displays were costly and in good taste. All in all, the array was creditable to Portland's taste, wealth and patriotism, and probably for a long time we shall not look upon its like again.

[illegible] very fine appearance—in fact constituted the "gem of the procession."

The four splendid coal black horses used drawing the barouche in which Gen. Grant, Mayor Thompson, Gen. Howard and Gov. Thayer were seated, were furnished by Messrs. Woodward & Magoon of this city.

Mrs. Grant, like most other ladies, is afraid of storms, and frequently on their journeyings has given utterance to fears of going to the bottom of the sea. Yesterday, when the St. Paul ran on the sand, Gen. Grant, addressing his wife familiarly, said: "Julia, you ought to be satisfied now, we've gone to the bottom at last!"

General Grant's memory of important events in his early days is simply wonderful. Mr. Lloyd Brooke was with Grant at Natchitoches, Miss., in 1844, and in the course of

ing. In the early part of November he was ordered to make a demonstration against Belmont, a point on the Mississippi river, to prevent the crossing of rebel troops into Missouri. With 3100 men he attacked 7000 confederates, broke up and destroyed their camp, and retired to his transports with 200 prisoners and two pieces of artillery. In February, 1862, at his own request, he was allowed to attack Fort Henry, on the Tennessee river, in conjunction with a naval force, and after a light engagement the garrison surrendered. Without waiting for orders General Grant moved on to Fort Donelson, 12 miles distant, on the Cumberland river, and with 15,000 men attacked the fortress, which was defended by 21,000 men and heavy artillery. Here was the turning point in the General's career, and with the fall of Donelson came the plaudits of the people and recognition from the Government. The fight lasted three days, and on the 15th Grant carried the works by assault, cap-

land the General has explored France, Italy, Turkey, Russia, India and China, having been received everywhere with great consideration and respect, by Kings, Queens, Emperors and potentates generally.

General Grant arrived in San Francisco from China on the 20th of last month. With his splendid reception in that city and throughout California our readers are familiar. He is now among us for a short time, whence he goes directly to the eastern States.

Genealogy of the Grants.

In the life of Grant by Dana and Wilson there is the following note on the Grant genealogy:

Playfair's British Family Antiquity, vol. vii., states that the original of the Grants is somewhat doubtful, and whether they were originally Scotch or came from Denmark or France, cannot

MONDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 13 1879.

THE NORTHWEST.

The Willamette Valley.

Wheat is worth 97 cents aboard the cars at Irving.

The west side road now carries the mail through from Portland to McMinnville.

The Dallas council has ordered new sidewalks to be built along the principal streets of that town.

The west-side railroad extension has almost reached Derry, the station on Colonel Nesmith's place.

During a general row in a saloon at Independence last week, Wm Cornelius was shot in the leg by J. R. Cooper.

Some wretch recently shot and badly wounded a colt belonging to Mr. T. A. Shane, of Salem. A valuable dog was shot at the same time.

Prices current at Eugene: Wheat, 94c per bushel; oats, 35c; butter, 25c per pound; lard, 10c; eggs, 20c per dozen; bacon, sides, 10c; hams, 12½c; shoulders, 8c; flour, $6 per barrel.

Hon. Stephen Staats, in a communication to the Riverside, suggests connecting Dallas with the west side railroad by a branch to Dixie, and also the building of a road from that place to Salem.

The McMinnville warehouse men are complaining bitterly because they cannot get cars to ship wheat from that point, while a dozen or so have been taken up the track. The side track there is occupied continually with flats loaded with iron and other railroad material.

Dallas Itemizer: The board of equalization refused to reduce the tax on the railroad land in this county, which was assessed at $[illegible] 50 per acre. It is claimed by the railroad company that they are willing to sell the whole amount for $1 50 per acre, but no affidavit having been filed, as required by law, it was decided to leave it as assessed by our assessor.

The Yamhill Reporter has it from good authority that the railroad company will establish a depot at the cross roads near St. Joe, for the accommodation of Lafayette and surrounding country. This will be a great convenience to that town, and will put many a dollar into the pocket of the railroad company, as all the freight and passenger traffic would go by river had the depot been located at the point first intended—on the bank of the Yamhill.

Yamhill Reporter, 10th inst.: Wheat has been advanced and again fallen a little in price. During the week it has once reached $1 00, sacks, but had receded last evening to $1 [illegible]. These quotations are for McMinnville, where we observe that no sales worth mentioning have been made. From Sheridan we have quite a different report. In the neighborhood of 30,000 bushels changed hands there during the week, at from 97 cents to $1 per bushel, sacked. We have no reports from other markets in the county.

Work has begun on the projected wagon road from down towards Forest Grove, across the coast range and into Tillamook, via the [illegible] river. This work is being done by the railroad company. They have a lot of land on the route which will be greatly enhanced in value by means of the road, and are coming forward liberally on their share of the enterprise. The people of Tillamook, also have taken considerable stock in it, and from all appearances it will probably be carried on to completion.

Eastern Oregon.

The new Monumental mill will start up on the 1st of November or near that time.

Peter Cowan, a pioneer, engaged on the Umatilla House at The Dalles, died on the [illegible] of the 4th inst. of apoplexy.

Recently rains have wet the ground sufficiently to be in good plowing order, and farmers of [illegible] valley, as well as those of Umpqua, are plowing, not by the acre, but by the hundreds of acres. Some of the land is being sown, and no doubt a greater proportion than ever sown before in the fall will be put in, as rust never injures fall-sown grain.

An important suit in ejectment has been commenced in the U. S. circuit court by Mr. E. H. Luse against the following parties owning land in and about the town of Marshfield, on Coos Bay: F. Mark, A. Read and Learn for Yourself.

Many valuable discoveries and much useful knowledge is kept from the world, because of the immense expense in making them known to the people. This is not the case with BOSCHEE'S GERMAN SYRUP. Although but a few years introduced into this country, its sale now reaches in every town and village in the United States. Its wonderful success in curing consumption, severe Coughs, Pneumonia, Asthma and all other diseases of the throat and lungs, was first made known by distributing every year, for three years, over 400,000 bottles to the afflicted, free of charge, by druggists. No such a test of merit was ever given before to any other preparation. Could you ask more? Go to your druggist and get a bottle for 75 cents and try it. Sample bottles 10 cents.

MY LOVE LOVES ME.

'Tis the last bright hour of a magic time,
The waning close of a summer dream;
I shall soon be far from the ocean chime,
From the sleeping hills and the voiceful stream.
And I ever have lingered, loth to part,
O sweetest of western vales, from thee;
But I leave thee now with a bounding heart,
For I know to-day that my love loves me.

From the corn fields glowing with August bloom,
From the sea's soft blue, from the wide-swept down,
I go to my lonely city room,
To the dust and din of the work-worn town.
But a gay farewell to the golden fields
And a light adieu to the laughing sea!
All longing to linger passes and yields
To the thrill of the thought that my love loves me.

So I cheerily turn me to work again,
Life runs its daily round once more;
But the stress of thought and the sweat of brain
Have lost the hardness that erst they wore.
For with strange new glory the world is bright,
That never before was on land or sea;
And all things move in a misty light,
For joy that I know that my love loves me.

I know by the touch of her tell-tale hand,
I read in the rose blush bloom of her cheek
The lore that a lover can understand,
The wordless language that heart can speak.
Yet I hunger to hear it in accents low,
And I look and long for the day to be,
The golden day when I shall know
From her own true lips that my love loves me.

THE TENDER MERCIES OF THE OLD CRIMINAL LAW.

The speedy arm of justice
Was never known to fail;
The jail supplied the gallows,
The gallows thinned the jail.
And sundry wise precautions
The sages of the law
Discreetly framed, whereby they aimed
To keep the rogues in awe.
For, lest some sturdy criminal
False witnesses should bring—
His witnesses were not allowed
To swear to anything.
And lest his wily advocate
The court should overreach
His advocate was not allowed
The privilege of speech.
Yet, such was the humanity
And wisdom of the law,
That, if in his indictment there
Appeared to be a flaw,
The court assigned him counsellors
To argue on the doubt,
Provided he himself had first
Contrived to point it out.
Yet lest their mildness should, perchance,
Be craftily abused,
To show him the indictment they
Most sturdily refused,
But still, that he might understand
The nature of the charge,
The same was in the Latin tongue
Read out to him at large.
'Twas thus the law kept rogues at awe,
Gave honest men protection,
And, justly famed, by all was named,
Of wisdom the perfection.

TO BE WRITTEN.

THE PELICAN OF THE WASTE, OR THE BONDHOLDER'S DAUGHTER.

Chapter's from Denis Kearney's Forthcoming Novel.

[New York Graphic.]

The London Examiner announces a novel by Denis Kearney, which it thinks is yet to be written. Thanks to peculiar sources of information, the Graphic is able already to give three chapters from the work, and thus to pique the curiosity of the public in regard to what a novel by Denis Kearney can be. The book is to be called

THE PELICAN OF THE WASTE; OR,
The Bondholder's Daughter.

CHAPTER I.

The sun was sinking bloatedly in the western heavens amid great masses of golden clouds as the Pelican of the Waste walked gloomily in the garden of his palatial residence, kicking the pebbles under his feet as if they were down trodden heads of so many horny handed sons of toil. He was a large, dark-browed and villainous looking cur of a capitalist, dressed in purple and fine linen. His stomach was covered with a vest of satin, in the making of which not less than seven yards of stuff and the lives of millions of workingmen had been sacrificed. His small white hands glittered with diamond rings, and one of them clutched a gold headed cane, with which ever and anon he struck his gardeners, who when he had passed, paused in their labor and shook their clenched hands at his back, while they cursed him in angry tones not loud but deep. Beside him walked a fair girl whose blue eyes and long flowing tresses bespoke her the pampered child of luxury; everything about her mein and carriage—in a child of the poor the same carriage would have been called a waggin'—told of luxury and pride of birth. Yet by her mouth there lingered a smile which showed that her heart was not yet utterly hardened. In her small shell-like ears were glittering diamonds worth a king's ransom, and her hands were ensconsed in the finest kid gloves, which gave forth an aroma more delicate than that of the oleanders which grew along the path. Hark! what is it she says?

"Oh, pa," she rippled out, "how can I consent to give him up?"

"O, pah!" was the brutal reply. "You've got to give him up. What? You, the child of splendor; you, who have been carefully educated at Vassar College; who can play 'The Maiden's Prayer' as only your sainted mother ever played it before—you upon whom I have lavished a fortune sufficient to keep me in wine and tobacco for years—you, who can speak five languages with fluency—you wed with a poor hodcarrier's son! Child, you are out of your mind; it may not, nay, it must not be," and he ground his teeth, and struck another gardener such a resounding whack over the shoulders that the welkin rang with the reverberation. The fair girl covered her face with her daintily gloved hands, and a convulsive shudder ran through the slender frame. The Pelican ground his teeth as if his huge mouth was a grist mill, and his teeth were corn. Presently the maiden recovered her equanimity and sobbed out:

"O, paw!" and she seized his hand, and was carrying it to her lips in supplication, when suddenly he withdrew it, and gave his fair child a brutal slap in the mouth. She sank hastily to the ground, or, rather, would have done so if a lithe manly form, clad in a rough cardigan jacket, had not hastily dashed from the undergrowth and caught her in his hod as she was falling. The Pelican of the Waste retreated a step or two before the unexpected apparition, and then haughtily remarked:

"Who are you, sirrah? Unhand me, child, thou hod-bearing clodhopper!"

"An' it's me ye calls a hod-carrying clodhopper! ye bloated bondholding blatherskite? Hould on a minnit, till I gits me hod from atwixt yer daughter's showlders, and whacks yer over the hid wid it; thin ye'll see who's the bist man av us two."

Michael O'Hare—for such is the name of our hero—had frequently carried mortar to the very roof of a house, and thus through a quick wit and extensive powers of observation had become able to put a thousand roofs upon anything. He was proceeding to put one on the Pelican when Maude Waste, feeling that her hair was caught in a nail of the hod, hastily recovered consciousness, arranged her skirts, and, clasping her hands, cried:

"Where am I? Who are you? Oh, why was I ever born to bring sorrow to those I love? Is it you, dear Michael?"

"Faith, it's mesilf, darlint, an' av ye'll jist git out o' me hod, sure I'll baste the ould divil's hide as av he was a roast goose, bad cess to him, for a hardhearted old lecherous dodo av dhe wilderness! Och, murther, murther, to go sthreck the choild! An' him for him to call himself an honorable bilk, the brassmounted old fraud! Git out av me hod, I say, till I give him a taste av it owver de pate!"

But the agonized girl refused to rise, and while the horny handed lover was stooping to extricate her hair from the nail, the sneaking and treacherous Pelican stepped up behind him and, raising his foot in the air, gave— But why should we continue the scene? Let us draw a vail over the picture. Suffice it to say that when Michael O'Hara rose in the air he instinctively grasped the hod, which was fastened in Maud's hair, and presently lay unconscious and shockingly disheveled some paces farther on in the path.

CHAPTER XIII.

"Fire! Riot! Bloodshed! Murder! Down with the bloated bullheads of the Bosphorus! To arms! To arms! Death to the Pelican of the Waste!"

Such were the sounds which echoed from thousands of throats, smote upon the blasted ear of the Pelican of the Waste, as shuddering in mortal terror, he sat in the drawing room of the palatial residence with his head bowed upon his hands, and yet above all this wild noise and tumult could be heard the chattering of his teeth and the crackling sound of his knees smiting against each other in the extremity of mortal terror. As related in our last chapter, the Pelican, presuming upon the patience of the people, had ordered a new and elegant chromo mounted in ormolu from the factory in New York, and when this fact became generally known the people had risen in their wrath and sworn that such things should no longer be. The long pent up agony of the horny-handed laborers burst forth, and with such cries as these, mingled with yells for "bed, bread, beer and 'baccy," they came surging en masse around the mansion of the Pelican, determined to leave no stone unturned to accomplish their purpose. And now, upon the stillness of the night burst forth these cries beneath the Pelican's doors. In vain had the bloated boomerang of monopoly offered to countermand the order for the chromo. It was too late! A load of hay had been dragged from its bursting garners and placed against the side of his princely residence; the match had been applied, and presently the fire demon was leaping and lapping with tongues of flame about the building. It crept through the keyholes, it darted its forked tongues through the chinks of the doors, it ran roaring up the lightning rods, it moaned and bellowed and shrieked and howled through the long corridors, and there sat the Pelican of the Waste, the victim of his own madness, tortured by conscience, and knowing that should he venture forth he would be torn from limb to limb by the justly incensed people. Every time he heard a beam fall he gave a jump and tore his hair, and added to the bitterness of the thought that his ill-gotten property was being destroyed was the somber reflection that his innocent Maud lay asleep in the next room while he was too down-hearted to rise and break the intelligence to her. Such is the power of conscience acting upon a feeble will, that the Pelican, though he knew his daughter would probably be burned to death if this thing kept on, yet dared not tap at the door. Now mounts the raging elements; the people are making it warm for their oppressor. And as he hears their cries he sobs aloud. Suddenly he recognized a stifled sound in his child's apartment, and as he listens, painfully intent, he hears a voice cry:

"Paw! Paw! P-a-w!" Aha! This is indeed bitterness for the pampered and brass bound galoot—to hear his own daughter cry "Paw" to him at such an hour. Then the door bursts open, and Maude, with disheveled locks peeping from under her dainty nightcap and with only a camel's hair shawl thrown about her magnificently molded shoulders, rushes into his room and exclaims:

"Where am I? Who am I? Whence this strange heat these falling beams, these crackling window shutters, this nasty smell of fire?"

Suddenly a manly form, clad in a strangely singed cardigan jacket and bearing a hod upon its shoulders, dashes through the jalousies, and crying: "Come on, Maude, darlint; sure I've a ladder at the windy, an' me used to goin' up an' down loike a cat. Fly wid me an' lave off yer howlin'."

"But my father—my progenitor," cries the agonized girl, hastily adjusting her shawl about her imperial form. "Oh, save him, too!"

"Och, to blazes wid dhe ould thafe av the worruld; come, ave off wid yer scrychin' an' git into me hod," cries our hero, and seizing the delicate maiden by the waist, he seated her in his hod and hastily retreated through the window, bearing her down the ladder in safety over his shoulder, while the welkin rang with huzzas. Such is the power of a true workingman. The Pelican of the Waste sat still in his chair till it became too hot to hold him, and then walked to the window, where he was received with howls of execration. The fire had not yet reached him, but presently he was seen to be glowing all over, and a stream of flame shot out of his mouth. He was, in fact, incandescent, and slowly and spontaneously combusting, for through long habits of inebriety his frame had become saturated with alcohol, and now he smoldered away, breathing fire and curses to the end.

CONCLUSION.

Michael O'Hara was the hero of the day. By his marriage with Maude Pelican Waste he had become possessed with immense wealth, and was therefore well qualified to become the chief of the Knights of Labor, and when the bloated capitalists shall have passed away from the face of the earth, and the cause of labor without capital shall have triumphed, his proud descendants shall still wear upon their armorial bearings the crest which now adorns that of the O'Haras. It is a hod rampant, grasping the throat of a pelican, with gules in a field of azure, and surmounted with the legend, Hodie et semper triumphans.

A CALAMITOUS KISS.

[Virginia Chronicle, September 25th.]

Yesterday afternoon John Meeker was tried before Justice Knox on charges of disturbing the peace and assault and battery. The case grew out of a disturbance which took place at social party at Mr. Adams' house, on South F street. It appeared that the defendant Meeker had been invited to a little party at Adams' house on Tuesday evening. He attended the party, taking his girl. Adams, in the course of the evening's festivities, began to take liberties with the girl, and Meeker raised a row, which ended in an assault on Adams.

Adams, the complaining witness, testified that while the frolic was in progress the defendant charged him with improper conduct toward the young lady he brought there, and finally assaulted him, striking him once in the eye (eye exhibited to the jury).

Attorney for the defense—Mr. Adams, did you not deport yourself in an unseemly way toward the young lady?

The witness—Not altogether.

Attorney—Now, didn't you hug her?

Witness—Yes, by mistake. (The jury look at one another in astonishment.)

Attorney—Please explain.

Witness—I was sitting on the sofa alongside my wife when suddenly a gust of wind put out the light. After the light was extinguished I heard a noise as if people were getting kissed [sensation], so I thought I'd stand in. I grabbed the lady next to me, thinking it was my wife, and when the lamp was relighted I found it was Miss Clark that I had hold of.

[The laughter in the room was checked by Constable Metcalfe.

Attorney—Did you kiss her?

Witness (after some hesitation)—I don't think I did.

Attorney—Why are you not sure?

Witness—There was so much confusion at the——

Attorney—Now, don't you know you did?

Witness—I won't swear positively whether I did or not.

Attorney—If you had been sure it was your wife would you have kissed her?

Here the witness looked around uneasily for a few seconds, and not seeing his wife in the court room, answered with a grin, "No."

This caused another general laugh, and the witness left the stand. He was more than astonished a moment after when his wife was called. She swept out from the back room and took the stand, with her black eyes snapping like a terrier's. At the sight of her Adams presented a pitiable appearance, and made himself as small as possible behind Constable Metcalfe. No man in the court room would have changed places with him for a thousand dollars.

Mrs. Adams has been subpenaed for the prosecution, but her husband labored under the mistaken belief that she had been excused. The district attorney must have known that it was dangerous to put her on the stand, but he probably could not resist the temptation. She was more than anxious to testify.

"We were having a little social party at our house last Tuesday evening. I was sitting beside my husband on the sofa, when he asked me to go across the room and introduce a couple of people that were not acquainted. I went, and just then the light went out. Soon after Miss Clark, the girl that came with Meeker, slid over toward my husband—that man sneaking down behind the constable. Then I heard 'em kissing. I told Meeker that it was a put-up job, and he knocked my husband down. I thought he done just right."

Miss Lucy Clark, who lives on North Stewart street, testified that she was sitting near Mr. Adams when the light went out. Everybody was rushing to kiss the girls and she thought she would get up near Mr. Adams for protection, he being a married man. [Great merriment, in which the court unwillingly joined.]

District Attorney—Did he kiss you?

Miss Clark (blushing)—He thought I was his wife.

The Court—Did you kiss him back, thinking he was your husband?

At this sally of the court the spectators laughed uproariously, and it required several minutes to restore order.

Miss Clark declined to answer, and the court decided that she need not criminate herself.

A young man named Armstrong, a nephew of Adams', swore that his uncle promised him a dollar to blow out the light, when he gave the signal. Adams scratched the top of his head as a signal. He gave the signal just after his wife left him.

The jury found a verdict of not guilty.

When Adams next has occasion to scratch his head, it is probable that he will find less hair there than when he scratched it the last time.

ENGLISHMEN AND FRENCHMEN.

THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN THEM.

A French journalist, M. Milland, has taken a trip to England and enjoyed himself so well that he advises all the readers of Le Figaro to go and do likewise. In his opinion Albion forms the most absolute antithesis with France. The Frenchman is a ward. He is everywhere protected. He is forbidden to go where he might break his neck, as if he were an idiot. He is not allowed the intelligence necessary for avoiding accidents, bad men and intriguers. In all public places, in railway stations, for instance, the French are penned up like sheep in a fold; they are made to maneuver between barriers shown their way, and their steps are measured. On making the first stride in England one feels himself free. He is warned by placards of the dangers to which he is exposed. It is supposed that he will not be so silly as to get in front of a locomotive or to offer his watch to the pickpockets of the United Kingdom. The three-card trick succeeds no where but on the south-eastern line, which is the only one on which Frenchmen travel. The sharpers know that none but Frenchmen can be taken in by it. In a word, here is the most complete independence for one's movements, and for one's self. It has its drawbacks at first, but its advantages are the more numerous. The Englishman is astonished at nothing; he knows everything, never makes a mistake, questions no one, avoids the vehicles, which go along as they please, and he never has to consult a policeman. This is, indeed, the country where every one is his own policeman, and where the police are honored because they never take any notice of anybody. Even the animals are penetrated with the same grand feeling of independence and personality. Sheep, which, in France, would scatter in all directions at the approach of a train, here stand quietly at the gates watching the engine pass, and appear proud of that proof of the national industry. They could not look more pleased if they were shareholders in the company. The traveler himself cannot lose his time unless he absolutely wishes to do so. He steps out of the train into a cab, or else goes up some steps and catches another train going in a different direction; or, if he desires it, he can go to a hotel in the station itself. It is the acme of industry and comfort. M. Milland concludes his letter by a short account of the old Thames tunnel and the present sub-way, which he likens unto a promenade in a pipe stem, while admitting its utility and convenience for those employed at the docks.

MAJOR THORNBURGH.

Sketch of the Gallant Officer who Fell in the Fight with the Utes.

OMAHA, Oct. 1.—Major Thomas T. Thornburgh was born in Tennessee and first saw military duty during the late civil war. In September, 1861, he enlisted as a private in the 6th regiment of Tennessee volunteers. He was in the service from that time on till August, 1863. During this term he served for the first five months as a private, for two months as sergeant-major, and for the remainder of his term in the service as lieutenant and adjutant. He took part in the battle of Mill Springs, was with our army when Gen. Morgan made his celebrated retreat from Cumberland Gap to the Ohio river, and participated in the battle of Stone river. On Sept. 1st he was entered at the U. S. military academy at West Point, and was one of the class of 26 graduates from there on June 17, 1867. He was promoted to be second lieutenant in the 2d artillery, going then upon leave of absence till January 1st, 1868. He was first stationed at the Presidio, San Francisco, remaining there until February 25th, 1868. From there he went to the Fortress Monroe (Virginia) Artillery School for practice, being stationed there from April 13th, 1868, to May, 1869; then at Alcatraz, California, from June 14th, 1869, to Nov. 10th, 1871, excepting a short while when he was detached to Sitka, Alaska (August 23d to November 17, 1869). From December 6, 1869, till April 2, 1870, he was professor of military science at San Diego, California. On April 21, 1870, he became first lieutenant of artillery. He was stationed in his native state, at the East Tennessee University, as professor of military tactics, from November 27, 1871, till June 20, 1873. For two years he was in garrison at Fort Foote, Maryland, being ordered away from there in April 27, 1875. He was then promoted to be major of staff, and on July 12th of the same year became paymaster at San Antonio, Texas. He was transferred from there on the 13th of August following to Fort Brown, in that state, and ordered away from there on January 26, 1877. He next came to this city, and was stationed at the Barracks at Fort Omaha for fifteen months, being ordered to the frontier from this post on May 23, 1878. He became major of the fourth infantry at Fort Steele, Wyoming, holding this commission till June 29th of last year. Since that time he has done scouting duty, his knowledge of the country, which he has scouted and hunted over, making him especially fitted for his duty. He was a brother of ex-Congressman Thornburgh of Tennessee.

The mission of the republican party is not ended, and cannot be while the south remains solid. The breaking up of the sectional and geographical party which the solid south has organized is a business worthy of the party which saved the government.

the wrecked steamship Great Republic did on July 5, 1879, file his petition in the above entitled court, praying for a limitation of liability as provided in sections 4283, 4284 and 4285 of the Revised Statutes of the United States; and, whereas, on August 9, 1879, an order was made by said court allowing said petition, and appointing J. R. Stoddard, Esq., of Portland, Oregon, trustee to receive from said Cornwall a transfer of all his interest in said vessel and freight, in trust for all persons who may be entitled to the benefit thereof; and, whereas, said Cornwall did on September 22, 1879, file in said court his transfer to said trustee of all his interest aforesaid; now, therefore, in accordance with said order of said court, this is to cite and admonish all persons claiming damages on account of the loss and destruction of said steamship Great Republic to appear before this court and make due proof of their respective claims before the clerk thereof, designated as a commissioner for such purpose, on or before January 1, 1880.

Witness the Hon. Matthew P. Deady, Judge of said court, and the seal thereof affixed at Portland, in said district this September 25, 1879.

NOTES AND NEWS.

Judge Morrison, chief-justice-elect of California, will hold office eleven years, at an annual salary of $6000.

Count Von Moltke knows something of English literature, thinks highly of Shakespeare, but more highly of Miss Braddon.

Perhaps Massachusetts would be justified in using the Barksdale plan in connection with Ben. Butler. Here is an extreme case.

Mrs. Jessie Benton Fremont has given [illegible] "history talks" to the larger pupils of the public schools in Prescott, Arizona.

Mrs. Langtry being about to sail for America, it occurs to us that her fit of seasickness will be no lovelier than any one's [illegible].

An exchange says: "In Missouri the other day a young man was really talked to death." Such cases are rare when congress is not in session.

Ralph Waldo Emerson never was a robust man, but he has outlived most of his early [illegible]. Old age is rapidly showing itself upon him of late.

The Wisconsin democracy has got into a [illegible] tangle; advocating hard money and [illegible] the playful pistol practice of its southern brethren.

The New York World thinks the course of [illegible] was "very like the snakes in Ireland which committed suicide to save themselves from slaughter."

[illegible] Tilden has declined with thanks [illegible] to deliver the address at the [illegible] of the Keystone Agricultural Society of [illegible], Pennsylvania.

[illegible] Illinois, is fluttering with premonitory symptoms of the boom. They are [illegible] Grant's house in order, and the local [illegible] training their voices.

[illegible] Sherman says he hates war above [illegible] "And," adds the solid [illegible] "he has a disgusting habit of making [illegible] feel the same way."

The Cincinnati Commercial is puzzling its [illegible] the mystery how the New York [illegible] to dandle one of the Robinson [illegible] Siamese twins and spank the other at the same time.

[illegible] Butler had been able to capture [illegible] as well as he can capture conventions [illegible] never have been bottled up at [illegible], and the war might have been [illegible] shortened.

[illegible] is a peculiar town. It lashed itself [illegible] fever of excitement the other night [illegible] rumor of President Hayes' death, [illegible] Mr. Wheeler was not within reach [illegible] an ovation.

[illegible] Evening Journal: One of the Rothschilds [illegible] filled with joy unutterable [illegible] that it would be possible if [illegible] had an eye to drive any [illegible] through it.

[illegible] of James Buchanan, which [illegible] to the late Wm. B Reed, [illegible] written by Mr. George Ticknor [illegible] will, it is reported, receive for his [illegible] one-half the copyright.

[illegible] authority says: "There is more [illegible] the bite of a mosquito than there [illegible] of a rattlesnake, considering the [illegible] ever thinks of priming a [illegible] whisky when he is bitten by a [illegible]

[illegible] George W. Julian, the well known [illegible], says Grant and Tilden [illegible] candidates for the presidency [illegible] does not inform the public [illegible] of the two will be elected. Perhaps [illegible]

[illegible] enumeration thirty-three democratic [illegible] in Mississippi approve and [illegible] murder of Dixon for the atrocious [illegible] being an independent candidate [illegible] in opposition to the regular [illegible]

[illegible] unto my eyes," wrote the Rev. [illegible] Talmage in his last letter, [illegible] sailing for home, "as I think [illegible] we shall have this winter." [illegible] Brooklyn presbyters also, doubtless [illegible] this suggestion.

[illegible] condition of Russia may be inferred [illegible] statement of the Russian [illegible] that 3867 fires occurred in [illegible] during August alone, causing a [illegible] 15,000,000. The czar may well [illegible] apprehension of the acts of [illegible]

[illegible] writes plays, and decap[illegible] to speak adversely of them. [illegible] painted a picture [illegible] in the background was [illegible] in the foreground, and an [illegible] hinted that the work [illegible] a few hours lacked both [illegible]

[illegible] who is living with her [illegible] Corbin, of Jersey City, says of [illegible] "I don't know as he was [illegible] the rest of them; but people [illegible] I'll say so now. He was [illegible] serious sort of a boy, who [illegible] in earnest. Even when he [illegible] a business of it."

[illegible] iron workers have just had a [illegible] Philadelphia, and declared for a [illegible] on steel rails! They want it [illegible] or to some other point which [illegible] shut out English steel rails [illegible] But nothing short of ab[illegible] will do that. They now [illegible] privilege of charging the consumers [illegible] more than foreign steel is [illegible] still not satisfied. If congress [illegible] to the existing $28 of [illegible] monopoly steel mills would increase their prices $5, and then howl [illegible] protection.

[illegible] ST. HELENA

[illegible] DISTILLED GRAPE BRANDY [illegible] OLD EDGE HILL WINES.

[illegible] sole proprietor of the principle [illegible] the vacuum process of distilling [illegible] the fusil oils are left with the [illegible] not incorporated with the brandy, [illegible] and free from all deleterious [illegible] which does and must exist in all [illegible] distilled by the usual process [illegible] heat. California Physicians [illegible] their preference of it to all [illegible] Cox, government revenue officer [illegible] Ohio, says in his report, [illegible] of close investigation he [illegible] that very few, if any, pure [illegible] are exported from the Old [illegible] this. He has found none in [illegible] that all are doctored before [illegible] France. The French Consul at [illegible] writes home to his government [illegible] much complaint is made there [illegible] of litharge and other dan[illegible] all their French wines, that [illegible] danger of losing the trade of [illegible] States. Other proofs could be [illegible] necessary, to prove the superiority [illegible] the best class of California wines [illegible] Orders from responsible parties, [illegible] Wm. Scheffler, or Geo. H. [illegible] St. Helena, Napa county, Cal., will [illegible] prompt attention.

LIFE OR DEATH.

KING OF THE BLOOD

THE MOST THOROUGH PURIFIER OF THE BLOOD YET DISCOVERED.

Cures all Humors, from a Common Eruption to the Worst Scrofula.

It purifies the Blood.
It invigorates the Liver.
It regulates the Bowels.
It strengthens the Stomach.

It gives vivacity in place of lassitude; cheerfulness in place of gloom, and robust vigor in place of debility.

Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Disordered Liver, Constipation, Nervous Affections, General Debility, in short all the numerous diseases and discomforts caused by impure blood are speedily conquered by this powerful corrector, the chief and sovereign of all ancient or modern medical discoveries—KING OF THE BLOOD.

ITS NAME IS ITS BEST DESCRIPTION, as it is a royal dispenser of the blessings of health, and vanquishes the foes that lurk in the blood.

It banishes PIMPLES, SALT RHEUM, SCALY ERUPTIONS, ULCERS, SCALD HEAD, FEVER SORES and all SCROFULOUS DISORDERS.

It checks CONSUMPTION in its early stages. It has frequently cured it when advanced.

It disperses TUMORS and CANCERS without the Surgeon's knife.

It cures DROPSY, general or partial.

It cures FEMALE WEAKNESS and DISEASE.

It reduces in a safe and effectual manner all swellings, external or internal.

It eradicates the effects of Mineral Poisons, and establishes a sound constitution.

Many certificates, much further information and full directions for using, will be found in the pamphlet, "Treatise on Diseases of the Blood," in which each bottle is enclosed.

Price $1 per bottle containing 12 ounces, or 40 to 50 doses. Sold by Dealers in medicine.

A PROMISING "BOOM" FROM THE EAST.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27, 1879.

———— ————: Have about finished up here and expect to be with you a week or so after you receive this. Feist & Franks' failure has had a bad effect on the booming market, and has made CASH twice as big as it was. I have used all you sent me and want more. I cleared a Philadelphia manufacturer out of two lines of Spreads yesterday, and have forwarded you a good White Jaquard Quilt to sell for 50c., and a Large Colored Spread, heavy and fringed, to sell for $1—worth $1.65 by the case and sold every day for that money. You will receive some excellent Rubber Ulsters for ladies, such as we sold last season for $4 50, which you can sell for $3, and a lot with large double capes equally cheap. I cleared the French Kid Gloves this morning. Portland has never seen such goods at the price; the "Jouvin Coupe" is a Glove which you can warrant in every particular.

The BLACK SILKS I wrote you of are in the Custom-house, but I expect to get them through and on the road Monday. The 75c. TRIMMING SILK will take the town by storm. I came to terms with the Fairmount Mill (S. Bros & Co.) and they have shipped the Check Dress Goods, to sell at 12 yards for $1. They are actually worth 20 cts. per yard and the patterns are quite new.

Please remit £408, in sight exchange to the Braybrook Spinning Co., Belfast. It is the last payment on the Linen Purchase. I shall mail you a batch of invoices this evening.
Very truly, &c., D. S. COHEN.

P. S.—I picked up a lot of RUBBER UMBRELLAS at auction Thursday. They are retailing here at $2 50; elegant and durable goods. We will be able to sell them for $1 50. I offered that for a duplicate, but couldn't get them.

In connection with the above we will state that some of the goods have arrived. They are too various to enumerate, but even a casual inspection will convince any one that the place to trade in is the

ATTENTION, ATTENTION, ATTENTION!

Mr. Franklin having just returned from the East with a full and complete assortment of Dry Goods, Fancy Goods, Boots and Shoes, Carpets, Cloaks, &c., &c., we are enabled to fill all orders to the letter, and at the LOWEST FIGURES.

There is no use in talking or humbugging. We mean business, and we have come to the conclusion that goods must be sold, and we will sell at prices that will defy competition. All we ask is a fair trial.

TO THE LADIES:

We have determined this fall to carry a class of goods that will suit the most fastidious, and we will guarantee to give satisfaction. Ladies can depend upon having polite attention paid to them, as we have engaged a competent gentleman in this department.

NOTICE.

Another point we make this fall is to be able to show whatever we quote, and not humbug the public by false quotations.

Finally, however, the four blacks came up the gangway pirouetting and dancing, as if aware of their important office in the procession, to the imminent peril of the two ragged edges of the dense masses of humanity that packed the street on either side of the carriage as it slowly proceeded. A stop of half a minute took place at the corner of Front street and one enthusiastic individual seized the opportunity to rush up to the carriage and grasp General Grant's hand with, "How are you general?" The veteran of Appomattox was compelled to yield his hand, but glanced at the attacking party with the patient and long suffering look of the martyr to aggressive popular curiosity that he has ever been since the Tokio landed him in San Francisco. Sixth street for the schools. From some oversight, perhaps partially excusable under the circumstances, but two policemen were on duty, and they were utterly powerless to keep the crowd from the sidewalks. Every effort possible was made by several friends to get room, but without avail.

The high school took position on the east side of Sixth street, near the center. Harrison street school filed in good order on to the sidewalk on the west side, but the vast and immovable crowd which had taken possession of the street completely shut out all their view. The Central school were comfortably arranged on the southeast quarter of the school block, within the school yard, and the North school were similarly marshaled on the northeast quarter of the block. The whole number of school children present was about 1850.

from the building was an old and tattered flag which belonged to the company of troops in which General Sheridan served when an obscure and subordinate officer, at old Fort Yamhill in this state.

From the postoffice to the Clarendon hotel, by way of Morrison and Front streets, the procession again passed an almost unbroken line of decorations. The fronts of English firms as well as American, were gaily trimmed, the store of R. C. Janion & Co being conspicuous for its display.

A notable incident of the decorations was the ornamentation of various buildings in the Chinese quarters. Several of the displays were costly and in good taste. All in all, the array was creditable to Portland's taste, wealth and patriotism, and probably for a long time we shall not look upon its like again.

[illegible] very fine appearance—in fact constituted the "gem of the procession."

The four splendid coal black horses used drawing the barouche in which Gen. Grant, Mayor Thompson, Gen. Howard and Gov. Thayer were seated, were furnished by Messrs. Woodward & Magoon of this city.

Mrs. Grant, like most other ladies, is afraid of storms, and frequently on their journeyings has given utterance to fears of going to the bottom of the sea. Yesterday, when the St. Paul ran on the sand, Gen. Grant, addressing his wife familiarly, said: "Julia, you ought to be satisfied now, we've gone to the bottom at last."

General Grant's memory of important events in his early days is simply wonderful. Mr. Lloyd Brooke was with Grant at Natchitoches, Miss., in 1844, and in the course of

ing. In the early part of November he was ordered to make a demonstration against Belmont, a point on the Mississippi river, to prevent the crossing of rebel troops into Missouri. With 3100 men he attacked 7000 confederates, broke up and destroyed their camp, and retired to his transports with 200 prisoners and two pieces of artillery. In February, 1862, at his own request, he was allowed to attack Fort Henry, on the Tennessee river, in conjunction with a naval force, and after a light engagement the garrison surrendered. Without waiting for orders General Grant moved on to Fort Donelson, 12 miles distant, on the Cumberland river, and with 15,000 men attacked the fortress, which was defended by 21,000 men and heavy artillery. Here was the turning point in the General's career, and with the fall of Donelson came the plaudits of the people and recognition from the Government. The fight lasted three days, and on the 15th Grant carried the works by assault, cap-

General Grant arrived in San Francisco from China on the 20th of last month. With his splendid reception in that city and throughout California our readers are familiar. He is now among us for a short time, whence he goes directly to the eastern States.

Genealogy of the Grants.

In the life of Grant by Dana and Wilson, there is the following note on the Grant genealogy:

Playfair's British Family Antiquity, vol. vii., states that the original of the Grants is somewhat doubtful, and whether they were originally Scotch or came from Denmark or France, cannot now be positively stated. It is probable, however, they were Norman, and arrived about 1066 with William, the Conqueror. It is certain that the clan had become great and powerful in the early days of the Scotch monarchy. Gregory Grant, was "Sheriff Principal" of Inverness, between 1214 and 1249. John Grant commanded the right wing of the Scotch army at Halidon Hill, 1333, and was defeated. About 1400, the clan became divided into clan Chiaran and clan Allan. They held great possessions in the Strathspey country, and in the Jacobite troubles adhered to the Protestant and Whig cause.

The Strathspey country, the original home of the Grants, lies in the northeastern part of Scotland, along the course of the picturesque River Spey, in the shires of Inverness, Moray and Banff, and is remarkable for its beautiful scenery and noble forests of fir.

In "Collectanea Topographica et Genealogica," vol vii., it is stated that Lieutenant [illegible] Francis Grant was buried in [illegible] land, December, 2, 1781, and that his [illegible] bears as a crest a burning mount with the motto "Steadfast." In "Fairbairn's Crests of the Families of Great Britain and Ireland," [illegible] different crests of the Grant family [illegible] One of them represents a burning hill with [illegible] peaks, each surmounted by a flame, with the motto: "Stand sure; Stand fast; Craig [illegible]" Another Grant has as a crest, an oak [illegible] and sun shining, with the motto: [illegible] Harmless."

Robson's "British Herald" gives [illegible] crests of different Grants. Grant of [illegible] a burning mount—motto: "Stable" [illegible] Grant, a burning mount, [illegible] gas—motto: "Stand sure." Grant of [illegible] demi savage—motto: "I'll stand sure." [illegible] of Leith, a rock—motto: "Immobile."

One of the most distinguished [illegible] of the British army in India during the Sepoy [illegible] was a highland regiment [illegible] ly of Grants, bearing upon their colors [illegible] "Stand fast Craig Ellachie!"

The reader cannot help being [illegible] by the remarkable description of Grant's [illegible] peculiarities contained in the foregoing [illegible] of his sturdy clansmen.

MONDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 13 1879.

THE NORTHWEST.

The Willamette Valley.

Wheat is worth 97 cents aboard the cars at Irving.

The west side road now carries the mail through from Portland to McMinnville.

The Dallas council has ordered new sidewalks to be built along the principal streets of that town.

The west-side railroad extension has almost reached Derry, the station on Colonel Nesmith's place.

During a general row in a saloon at Independence last week, Wm Cornelius was shot in the leg by J. E. Cooper.

Same wretch recently shot and badly wounded a colt belonging to Mr. T A. Shane, of Salem. A valuable dog was shot at the same time.

Prices current at Eugene: Wheat, 94c per bushel; oats, 35c; butter, 25c per pound; lard, 10c; eggs, 20c per dozen; bacon, sides, 10c; hams, 12½c; shoulders, 8c; flour, $6 per barrel.

Hon. Stephen Staats, in a communication to the Riverside, suggests connecting Dallas with the west side railroad by a branch to Dixie, and also the building of a road from that place to Salem.

The McMinnville warehouse men are complaining bitterly because they cannot get cars to ship wheat from that point, while a dozen or so have been taken up the track. The side track there is occupied continually with flats loaded with iron and other railroad material.

Dallas Itemizer: The board of equalization refused to reduce the tax on the railroad land in this county, which was assessed at $1 50 per acre. It is claimed by the railroad company that they are willing to sell the whole amount for $1 50 per acre, but no affidavit having been filed, as required by law, it was decided to leave it as assessed by our assessor.

The Yamhill Reporter has it from good authority that the railroad company will establish a depot at the cross roads near St. Joe, for the accommodation of Lafayette and surrounding country. This will be a great convenience to that town, and will put many a dollar into the pocket of the railroad company, as all the freight and passenger traffic would go by river had the depot been located at the point first intended—on the bank of the Yamhill.

Yamhill Reporter, 10th inst.: Wheat has again advanced and again fallen a little in price. During the week it has once reached 97, sacks, but had receded last evening to 95. These quotations are for McMinnville, where we observe that no sales worth mentioning have been made. From Sheridan we have quite a different report. In the neighborhood of 30,000 bushels changed hands there during the week, at from 97 cents to $1 per bushel, sacked. We have no reports from other markets in the county.

Work has begun on the projected wagon road from down towards Forest Grove, across the coast range and into Tillamook via the Wilson river. This work is being done by the railroad company. They own a lot of land on the route which will be greatly enhanced in value by means of the road, and are coming forward liberally on their share of the enterprise. The people of Tillamook also have taken considerable stock in it, and from all appearances it will probably be carried on to completion.

Eastern Oregon.

The new Monumental mill will start up on the 1st of November or near that time.

Peter Cowrie, a plasterer, engaged on the Umatilla House at The Dalles, died on the night of the 4th inst. of apoplexy.

F. T. Sharp, who lives about three miles from The Dalles, sold 1500 bushels of wheat to the Highland mills, in that city, for 85 cents last Monday. The average production of wheat grown between The Dalles and Fifteen-mile creek, this year, was 32 bushels to the acre.

The steamer Thompson, on her up trip to The Dalles on the 7th inst. had 226 white passengers, most of them returning from the city, together with two car-loads of Chinese [illegible] which were sent on their jubilant way to the new town on Snake river, where the Pen d'Oreille division of the Northern Pacific railroad begins.

Dalles Inland Empire: The Portland and San Francisco markets are quietly draining the pastures of their fat cattle—faster than [illegible] they can be replenished. As the [illegible] in the Barlow Gate and [illegible] Pass both get too muddy for driving, and then the O. S. N. Co.'s boats have to carry the stock to tide-water. In the neighborhood of Prineville there are probably some [illegible] head of merchantable beeves for sale in small bands. Out in Grant county, Helpenstein has purchased 2700 head at an average of $14 per head, in gold. Phelps & Wadleigh have still large bands of cattle about the Okanogan, from which they supply their Yakima herds as fast as they become depleted by drives to Puget Sound. A band at Stein's mountain, owned by Dr. Glenn, of Colusa, recently sold for an average of $13 per head, all around, without regard to size; but there must have been a good many over two years old to have realized that figure.

Southern Oregon.

A good deal of fencing has been burned in Douglas county through carelessness in burning stubble fields.

Recently rains have wet the ground sufficiently to be in good plowing order, and farmers of Willamette valley, as well as those of Umpqua, are plowing, not by the acre, but by the hundreds of acres. Some of the land is being sown, and no doubt a greater proportion than was ever sown before in the fall will be put in, as rust never injures fall-sown grain.

An important suit in ejectment has been commenced in the U. S. circuit court by Mr. J. H. Luse, against the following parties owning land in and about the town of Marshfield, on Coos Bay: F. Mark, A. Bobree, John Tupper, J. Ernest, Isaiah Hacker, W. P. Hill, Daniel Kronenburg, W. H. Noble, C. W. Tower, C. Leighly, G. Stauf, W. Lund, A. Nasburg, Wm. Christianson, G. Watson, C. S. Golden, John Kenyon, William Worden, Jonathan Osborne et al., David Young, J. J. Canfield, Roderick Millage, Frank Lindgren, Wm. Richard, O. C. Smith, O. Ralston, George Webster, J. M. Siglin, David Campbell, Lyman M. Noble, W. G. Webster, Gus. Raymon, J. O. Bell, George Guy, Thomas Hurst, Hans Reed, George Davis, Geo. Blood, A. Rains, et al., and A. Nasburg, et al. The attorneys for plaintiff are John Burnett and C. S. Strahan, Esqs. The friends of Mr. Luse claim he has a good case and the defendants have no legal title to the property. Mr. Luse is said to have purchased the patent of the town site from the original patentee, and the present claimants have only "squatters' rights," and the fact that they are in possession of the land in dispute. Probably a test case will be made by the trial of one of the parties.

Washington Territory.

The steamer Traveler is bringing a very large amount of wheat into Portland from farms along the Columbia river.

Deacon White, a Clarke county farmer, has raised five onions which weigh 7½ pounds. One weighed nearly two pounds.

The culture of hops over in the Yakima valley is becoming a matter of considerable importance. Marchbanks, Williams & Co. have shipped 22 tons of this staple during the present year, more than one-half of which was produced by one man named Carpenter.

Read and Learn for Yourself.

Many valuable discoveries and much useful knowledge is kept from the world, because of the immense expense in making them known to the people. This is not the case with BOSCHEE'S GERMAN SYRUP. Although but a few years introduced into this country, its sale now reaches in every town and village in the United States. Its wonderful success in curing consumption, severe Coughs, Pneumonia, Asthma, and all other diseases of the throat and lungs, was first made known by distributing every year, for three years, over 400,000 bottles to the afflicted free of charge, by Druggists. No such a test of merit was ever given before to any other preparation. Could you ask more? Go to your druggist and get a bottle for 75 cents and try it. Sample bottles 10 cents.

PUGET SOUND HOP CROP.

GROWERS JUBILANT—GOOD CROPS AND BIG PRICES OBTAINED.

[REGULAR CORRESPONDENCE OF THE OREGONIAN.]

SEATTLE, Oct. 12, 1879.

Statistics collected by your correspondent from various parts of the Sound, place the total hop crop of the Sound country this year at 500,000 pounds, or 250 tons. Of these, 70 tons were produced in this county by the following parties: S. Wetmore, 2 tons; Wald Bros., 20 tons; J. Entwistle, 2 tons; John Burns, 4 tons; Van Doren, 27 tons; P. Hayes, 11 tons; Cow & Jeffs, 6 tons, and King county has generally been considered a non hop-producing county. All the hops produced in western Washington, were until within a year or two ago, raised in the Puyallup valley, the hop field of the Sound. The importance of this industry now bids fair to be paramount, not only to that, but to many other sections of the Sound country in a few years hence.

The price obtained will probably average 20 cents per pound, at the very lowest estimate, footing up in the aggregate $100,000, which, considering the few actually engaged in the business of hop raising here, is a pretty fair return.

A few tons were sold early in the season at from 11 to 13 cents per pound, while quantities have been disposed of more latterly at 20 and 23 cents per pound, and still later 26 cents per pound have been obtained. It is estimated that only about two-thirds of the crop has yet been disposed of, and it is probable that higher prices than even these will yet be realized.

In many cases last year the growers did not receive enough for their hops to cover the expense of picking alone, the cost of picking, including the drying and baling amounting to six cents per pound. Some of the Puyallup growers shipped their product to Melbourne last season, for which they did not receive return until a few weeks since. The hops brought 30 cents per pound in that market and the duty on them amounted to about one-half of this; allowing for the freightage and commission, the hops netted the growers only four cents per pound. Others sold their crop to but little better advantage. Mr. Patrick Hayes, of this county, however, shipped most of his hops to Leavenworth, Kansas, last season, where they netted him 11 cents. He has already shipped a considerable portion of his product to the same place this year, where he is promised the highest price paid.

May of the hop-growers of Puyallup valley, becoming discouraged last year in consequence of the low prices that had obtained for several seasons, concluded to abandon the business, and pursuant to this determination ploughed up their fields and seeded them to other crops. Included in this number was Mr. McCarty, formerly of this city, who had a twelve-acre hop field and one of the finest drying houses in the valley.

The high prices obtained this season have been a god-send to our hop growers, whose good fortune has enabled them to get out of debt and placed a majority in easy circumstances. In this connection we call to mind one grower in particular, who was $9000 in debt last spring and who, becoming disheartended at the prospect, offered to turn his farm over to his creditors in Portland, but was advised by them to hold on until the end of the season and see how his hop crop came out. This same man has since realized $13,000 for his hop crop, paid off his entire indebtedness and has money left.

The bulk of our hop crop this season is being shipped away to San Francisco via Portland, on account of its being cheaper to ship that way. One Puyallup farmer informs us that he saved $6 a ton in freight on his crop by adopting that route.

The local wheat market exhibits no particular excitement to-day, the volume of business being quite large and prices firm, ranging from $1 50 to $1 60 per cental for good to choice shipping in round lots. The vessels at hand are having reasonably good dispatch, and those who are willing to pay the top of the market find no difficulty in securing all that can be transported to tidewater with present facilities.

Oats are coming forward moderately freely and dealers are not ready buyers at anything over 40 cents per bushel.

Potatoes are abundant, and a good description of the trade is, buyers only take what they need to fill orders, and holders, if compelled to sell, must take about whatever they can get. Quotations are not over 40 cents per bushel.

Hay is selling to dealers at $12@12 50 for baled and $10@11 for loose. Other products unchanged.
